1. Foreword by the Director-General

Protecting freedom of expression, and its corollary, press freedom, is a central pillar of UNESCO's mandate. The importance of the unrestricted pursuit of truth and the free exchange of ideas and knowledge is enshrined in UNESCO's Constitution as a foundation for peace.

In this regard, a recent report, The Value of Journalism, jointly published by UNESCO, DW Akademie and the International Fund for Public Interest Media, compiles compelling evidence of journalism's benefits to societies, including stronger economic growth, enhanced security, and greater resilience against disinformation and crises.

Upholding press freedom goes hand in hand with promoting the safety of those engaged in journalistic work in the public interest and for the public good.

Over the past twenty years, 1,641 journalists have been killed, while only 14% of these cases have been resolved. The global impunity rate therefore stands at 86%. Encouragingly, when considering only killings in countries not affected by armed conflict, the impunity rate has declined by an average of one percentage point per year, falling from 94% in 2012 to 77% in 2026.

Nevertheless, the commitment to press freedom is more urgent than ever, as it remains under severe threat in both conflict and non-conflict settings, and journalists continue to pay a heavy price.

Since the beginning of my mandate as Director-General, UNESCO has also followed with deep concern the unacceptably high number of journalists living in exile or displacement, the detention of media professionals, and the expansion of "zones of silence" that remain largely inaccessible to independent media.

Addressing these challenges is at the heart of UNESCO's work. The Organization monitors killings and physical attacks against journalists, while supporting Member States in their efforts to prevent, protect against, and prosecute crimes committed against journalists. UNESCO carries out this work through the International Programme for the Development of Communication and by coordinating the implementation of the United Nations Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity.

The present report highlights the persistent challenges faced by journalists during the period 2024-2025, while also drawing on the evidence generated through UNESCO's systematic monitoring since 2006. This unique mechanism has, for two decades, tracked global impunity for killings of journalists and provided data for Sustainable Development Goal Indicator 16.10.1.

The report further documents the measures taken by States to prevent, protect against, and prosecute crimes against journalists, as well as efforts to address the specific threats faced by women journalists.

It is therefore with deep concern, but also with a strong sense of responsibility, that I present this 10th Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity to the Intergovernmental Council of the International Programme for the Development of Communication.

2. Executive Summary

This Report was drafted pursuant to a Decision from Member States at the 34th Intergovernmental Council meeting of the International Programme for the Development of Communication in 2024. It is the tenth consecutive Report of the Director-General on this topic following previous IPDC decisions on the safety of journalists.

From 1 January 2024 to 31 December 2025, UNESCO recorded globally the killing of 189 journalists, media workers and social media producers engaged in journalistic activity, a 20% increase from the previous reporting period.

The increase was driven by a surge in the number of journalist killings in countries experiencing conflict, which accounted for 127. This is a continuing trend which began in 2023, as identified in the previous report. In this biennium, a high number of journalists were reported as being killed by unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs), or drones, across multiple war zones, accounting for over a quarter of all killings.

However, killings in countries not experiencing armed conflict in 2024-2025 were at their lowest in the last 18 years (62 killings).

The Arab States region recorded the highest number of journalist killings, with 97 killings of journalists, followed by Latin America and the Caribbean where 37 killings were recorded.

The number of women journalists killed remained stable, however their share of the total number of journalists killed decreased. Fourteen women journalists were killed accounting for 7% of overall killings. This is the lowest percentage recorded in over a decade. All but one of the women journalists killed this biennium were killed in conflict zones.

Ninety-three percent (93%) of all journalist killings took place in the journalist's country of origin. Local journalists covering armed conflict, corruption, politics and crime remain by far the most vulnerable category, compared to foreign journalists.

In the 20 years since systematic monitoring began in 2006, UNESCO has recorded 1,641 killings of journalists, media workers and social media producers. On average one was killed every four days. Conflict related killings significantly outpaced non-conflict related killings in specific periods, for example from 2006-2007, 2012-2015, and 2023-2025.

For this report, seventy-eight (78) requests were sent to States for updated information on the status of the judicial process and criminal investigations into 1,358 ongoing or unresolved cases of journalists killed within their jurisdiction.

The rate of impunity in 2026 for killings of journalists globally increased by one percentage point to 86%, a return to the rate recorded in 2022. However, this still marks a reduction from the rate of 95% recorded in 2012. In countries not experiencing armed conflict the impunity rate for cases of killed journalists is 77%, compared with 94% in 2012.

Forty-eight (48) States reacted to the Director-General's requests, with 40 substantive responses and 8 acknowledgments. Thirty (30) States did not react. This year's response rate fell to 62% from a high of 80% in 2024, and below the recent response average of 68%.

Likewise, less States than in 2024 reported taking measures to promote safety and reduce impunity (33% of 78 States), and fewer States reported on actions and good practices aimed at tackling the gender dimension of journalist safety (27% of 78 States).

As per the 2024 IPDC Decision on the Safety of Journalists, in Section 5 the report provides additional information on non-lethal attacks against journalists. From 2024-2025, international civil society organisations recorded between 98 and 160 journalists had gone missing or were forcibly disappeared, with the wide variation explained by the different methodologies of these organizations. For 2024–2025, Reporters Without Borders recorded at least 938 journalists as "detained", while the Committee to Protect Journalists recorded at least 466 cases of "imprisoned" journalists. These figures reflect different methodologies and reference periods, as detailed in section 5.

Voluntary reporting on SDG Indicator 16.10.1 significantly increased. Eleven (11) States reported on SDG Indicator 16.10.1 in their National Voluntary Reviews during the biennium, compared to only one State in 2022 and 2023.

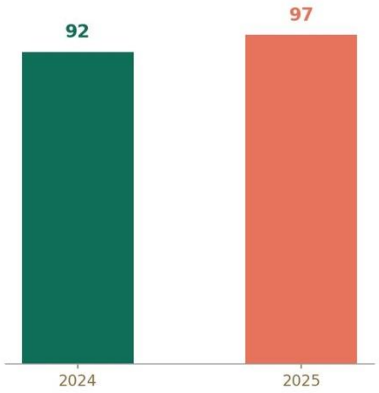

During the 45th-50th Working Group Sessions of the Universal Periodic Review (between January 2024 and November 2025), 69% of recommendations that were made by States in relation to freedom of opinion and expression and access to information under SDG Target 16.10, were supported by the receiving State, a higher percentage compared to previous (41st -44th) sessions, which was 65%.

3. Killings of Journalists in 2024 and 2025: Key Findings

3.a. Overall Snapshot

Over the period between 1 January 2024 to 31 December 2025, UNESCO verified 189 killings of journalists, media workers and social media producers who are engaged in journalistic activity, representing an average of one journalist killed every four days. This is a 20% increase from the previous biennium, during which UNESCO recorded 158 killings.[1] In 2025, more journalists were killed than in any other year in the last eight years (See Figure 16).

In 2024, the country with the highest number of journalist killings was the State of Palestine with at least 30 killings, followed by Pakistan (9) and the Republic of the Sudan (8). Killings also occurred in Mexico (7), Bangladesh (5), Colombia (4), Ukraine (4), Iraq (3), Myanmar (3), Lebanon (3), the Syrian Arab Republic (3), India (2), Democratic Republic of Congo (2), Haiti (2), Cambodia (1), Chad (1), Honduras (1), Indonesia (1), the Russian Federation (1), Somalia (1) and Yemen (1).

In 2025, the State of Palestine again recorded the highest number of cases, with at least 32 killings, followed by Mexico (10) and Yemen (9). Killings also occurred in Ukraine (8), the Republic of the Sudan (6), Peru (4), Ecuador (3), Philippines (3), Bangladesh (2), Colombia (2), Guatemala (2), India (2), Iran (Islamic Republic of) (2), Pakistan (2), Afghanistan (1), Brazil (1), Honduras (1), Nepal (1), the Russian Federation (1), Saudi Arabia (Kingdom of) (1), Somalia (1), the Syrian Arab Republic (1), United Republic of Tanzania (1), and Türkiye (1).

3.b. Distribution by Region[2]

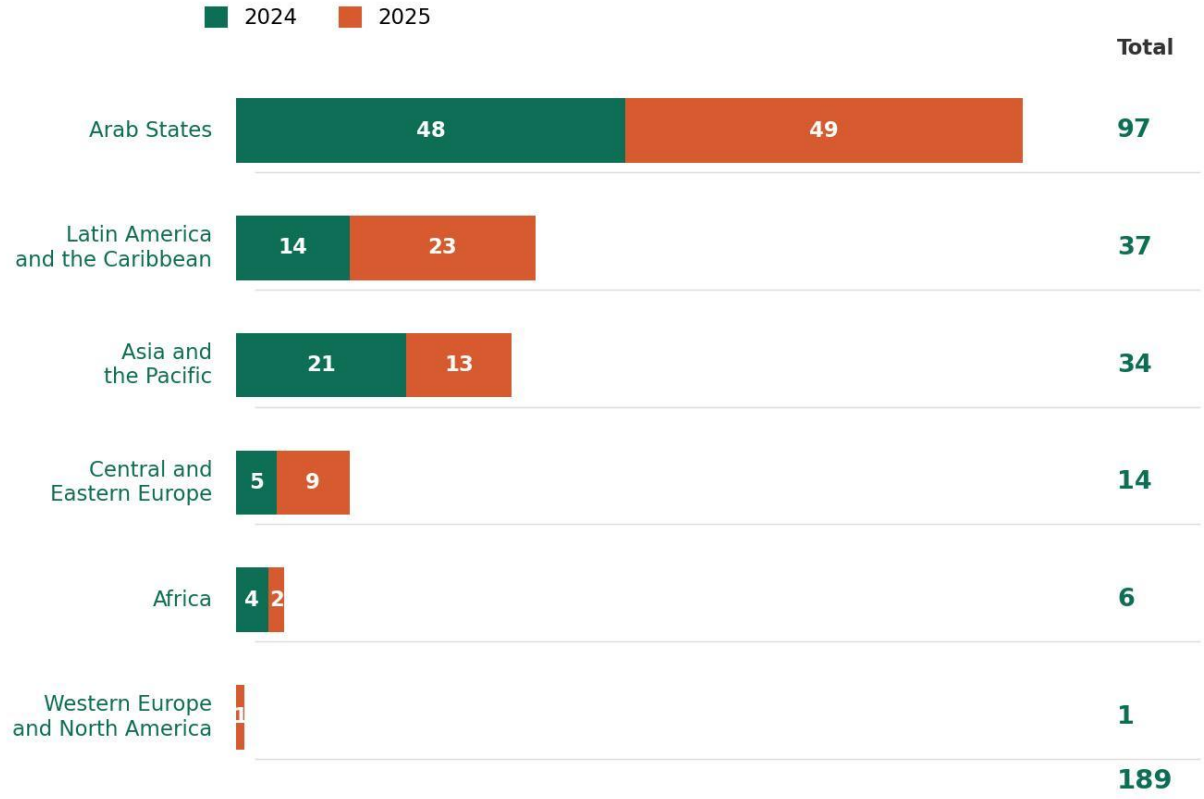

UNESCO recorded cases of killings of journalists across all regions. In the Africa region, there were six killings of journalists, a significant reduction from the previous biennium where 14 killings were recorded in this region (See Annex I). In the Asia and the Pacific region there were 34 killings. In Central and Eastern Europe there were 14 killings. In Western Europe and North

[1] 2024 Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity
[2] Regions are according to UNESCO Electoral regions. For more detail see Annex I.

America there was 1 killing, another significant reduction from the previous biennium, when six killings were recorded (See Annex I).

The highest number of verified cases of killings of journalists took place in the Arab States region, with 97 cases, followed by the Latin America and the Caribbean where 37 killings were recorded (See Annex I).

i. Distribution by Small Island Developing States, Landlocked Developing Countries and Least Developed Countries

In the 2024-2025 biennium, UNESCO recorded 45 killings of journalists in Small Island Developing States (SIDS), Landlocked Developing Countries (LLDC) and Least Developed Countries (LDC), accounting for 24% of all cases (these categories overlap and individual cases may belong to one or more category). Killings of journalists occurred in Afghanistan (1), Bangladesh (7), Cambodia (1), Chad (1), Democratic Republic of Congo (2), Haiti (2), Myanmar (3), Nepal (1), Somalia (2), the Republic of the Sudan (14), United Republic of Tanzania (1), and Yemen (10).

3.c. Distribution by Gender

In the 2024-2025 biennium, UNESCO recorded 14 killings of women journalists, accounting for 7% of overall killings. While the number of killed women journalists remains the same as the previous biennium, 7% is a reduction in the percentage of women journalists killed from the previous biennia, and the lowest overall percentage since the 2012-2013 biennium.

Almost all women journalists (13) were killed in countries experiencing armed conflict. Only one woman journalist was killed outside of conflict areas.

This continues a pattern observed in previous biennia, where a majority of women journalists were killed while working in conflict zones.

3.d. Killings in Countries Experiencing Conflict

During the 2024-2025 biennium, UNESCO recorded 127 killings of journalists in countries experiencing armed conflict, accounting for 67% of the total number of killings.[3] This is a 24 percentage point increase from the rate recorded in the previous biennium, where killings in conflict accounted for 43% of overall killings.

The increase in the overall killings of journalists in conflict zones this biennium is part of a steady five-year increase in the number of journalists killed in conflicts, from 20 in 2021 to 63 in 2025.

In the 2024-2025 biennium, 62 journalists were killed in countries not experiencing armed conflict. Sixty-two (62) is the lowest number of killings in countries not experiencing armed conflict in the last 18 years.

[3] Based on the countries mentioned in the reports of the UN Secretary-General on the Protection of civilians in armed conflict in 2025 and 2026 which cover developments in 2024 and 2025. The countries included were: Afghanistan, Burkina Faso, the Central African Republic, Cameroon (far North), the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Chad (in 2024), Colombia, Ethiopia, Iraq, Islamic Republic of Iran (in 2025), Libya, Mali, Myanmar, Mozambique, the Niger, Nigeria, Russian Federation, Somalia, South Sudan, the Republic of the Sudan, the Syrian Arab Republic, Ukraine, Yemen and the Occupied Palestinian Territory (country names as mentioned in the UN Secretary-General's Reports).

3.e. Analysis by Types of Killings[4]

In the 2024-2025 biennium, 127 journalists were killed in countries experiencing armed conflict. Among these, 50 journalists were reportedly killed in six countries by unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs), commonly known as “drones”, with all of these killings occurring in conflict zones in six countries in four different regions. These figures account for 40% of journalist killings in direct situations of armed conflict, and 26% of overall killings during this biennium.

In conflict zones, groups of journalists totalling 36 were reportedly killed in temporary field media houses and workplaces in four countries. In one instance, a single attack led to the killing of nine journalists.[5,6,7,8]

Local journalists covering armed conflict continued to bear the brunt of physical attacks, accounting for 90% of journalists killed in countries experiencing armed conflict. In 2022-2023, local journalists accounted for 91% of killed journalists in armed conflict. Foreign journalists killed in countries experiencing armed conflict accounted for 10% of journalists killed in 2024-2025. In 2022-2023, foreign journalists accounted for 9% of journalists killed in armed conflict. This small increase in percentage obscures nearly a doubling of foreign journalists being killed in countries experiencing armed conflict rising from 7 to 13 killings during this biennium. Foreign journalists were predominantly killed in Ukraine (9) and the Syrian Arab Republic (2).

[4] This section is informed by the definitions outlined for SDG indicator 16.10.1. The distinctions made rely on the circumstantial evidence reported on by UNESCO partners at the time of each killing.
[5] On 25 October 2024.
[6] On 27 October 2024, on 26 December 2024, on 5 June 2025, on 10 August 2025, and on 25 August 2025.
[7] On 17 June 2025.
[8] On 10 September 2025.

In 2024-2025, 15 journalists were reportedly killed while wearing identifiable press vests or in vehicles clearly marked as press. All of these killings occurred in conflict zones.

Journalists are increasingly killed at their workplace, when not on field assignments. In 2024-2025, 17 journalists were killed in their workplace, compared to 10 killings in 2022-2023 and 1 killing in 2020-2021.

The killing of journalists in private spaces such as homes, cars, or other personal places, often endangers their families or other people that happen to be nearby. In 2024-2025, 20 journalists (11%) were killed in their homes, and in some cases were killed along with their family members. This is a drop compared to 22 killings (14%) in 2022-2023, and 23 killings (20%) in 2020-2021.

Journalists killed while travelling by car or motorcycle continues to be a common trend, extending the risk to family members who may be accompanying them or persons who happen to be in the immediate vicinity of the killings. In the 2024-2025 period, the number of journalists killed in their vehicles increased, with 33 killings (18%) occurring in these circumstances, compared to 12% in 2022-2023.

Journalists were also reportedly killed in terrorist attacks or while reporting on a terrorist attack. The number of journalists killed in terrorist attacks decreased to 4 in 2024-2025 compared to eight in 2022-2023, but increased compared to one in 2020-2021.

Protests can be a setting for violent attacks against protestors, law enforcement actors and journalists. In 2024-2025, seven journalists were killed in connection with a protest, reaching the highest figure recorded, more than the six journalists killed in protests over the 2020-2021 period. UNESCO has further documented an increase in non-lethal attacks on media professionals reporting on protests, many perpetrated by security forces, in Issue Briefs dedicated to the topic of journalist safety in protests.[9]

In 2024-2025, two journalists were killed by large groups or mobs. In 2022-2023, three journalists were killed this way.

In 2024-2025, four community journalists were killed.

3.f. Killings Following Deprivation of Liberty

In 2024-2025, five journalists were killed while under police arrest, police custody or held in detention. In the 2022-2023 biennium, five journalists were reported killed in detention and three in 2020-2021.

One journalist was executed following a capital sentence.[10]

Like in the previous biennium, in 2024-2025 there was an increase in the number of journalist killings preceded by either a disappearance, a missing person's report, or a kidnapping. UNESCO verified 15 of these cases, compared to 13 in 2022-2023, and nine in 2020-2021. In 2024-2025, three of these journalists' bodies reportedly showed signs of torture.

[9] Brief on the role of law enforcement agents: ensuring safety of journalists during public demonstrations and elections, 2023, Paris, UNESCO; Safety of journalists covering protests: preserving freedom of the press during times of turmoil; Regional highlights, July - December 2020, 2021, Paris, UNESCO; Safety of journalists covering protests: preserving freedom of the press during times of turmoil, 2020, Paris, UNESCO.

This sequence of killing, i.e. following a disappearance, occurred most frequently in Latin America and the Caribbean (9). However, this sequence of killing was also recorded in the Arab States (3), Africa (1), the Asia-Pacific (1) and Central and Eastern Europe (1).

The bodies of at least two killed journalists reportedly showed signs of torture. All instances of alleged torture occurred during the detention or disappearance of a journalist in the lead up to their killing.

3.g. Distribution by Other Categories of Interest

i. Freelance/Staff

The distinction between staff and freelance journalists is increasingly vague in many countries, reflecting a global trend in terms of the profession being more and more precarious. Employment status may affect journalists' access to institutional, legal and safety support. In the context of armed conflict where formal media structures and infrastructure have been destroyed or disrupted, the distinction has been even more blurred.

UNESCO data shows that at least 92 cases of journalist killings could be verified as holding staff positions in their respective media organisations. These account for 49% of all cases, less than in the previous biennium when staff journalists accounted for 56% of all cases.

UNESCO data shows that at least 41 cases of killings of journalists could be verified as freelancers in one or more media outlets. This accounts for 22% of all cases.

ii. Area of Coverage[11]

Journalists are often targeted, detained, harassed or killed because of the subjects they cover, the individuals or entities they report on, and the interests their reporting may affect. In 2024-2025, journalists covering conflicts accounted for the highest number of killings (104).[12] The rest of the journalists killed in countries experiencing armed conflict principally covered topics like corruption, crime and politics.

However, the coverage of other stories can be just as dangerous. Journalists reporting on general politics accounted for 38 killings, those reporting on criminal activity accounted for 22 killings, those reporting on corruption accounted for 22 killings, and coverage of other beats like sports or entertainment also accounted for 22 killings.

One (1) journalist was reportedly killed in connection with his reporting on local elections.

[11] Categories of reporting may overlap. Figures in this subsection should therefore not be summed.
[12] UNESCO monitors the reporting of killed journalists in various categories, these include, conflict, corruption, crime, disability, elections, environment, gender, indigenous, politics, protests and other. This is an indicative not exhaustive list.

In 2024-2025, 3 journalists were killed in connection with their reporting in the context of defence of land, natural resources and the environment i. This is significantly less than what was recorded in 2022-2023 which was six, according to data taken from a UNESCO report into environmental reporting.[13] In 2020-2021, 8 journalists were killed in connection to their environmental reporting.[14]

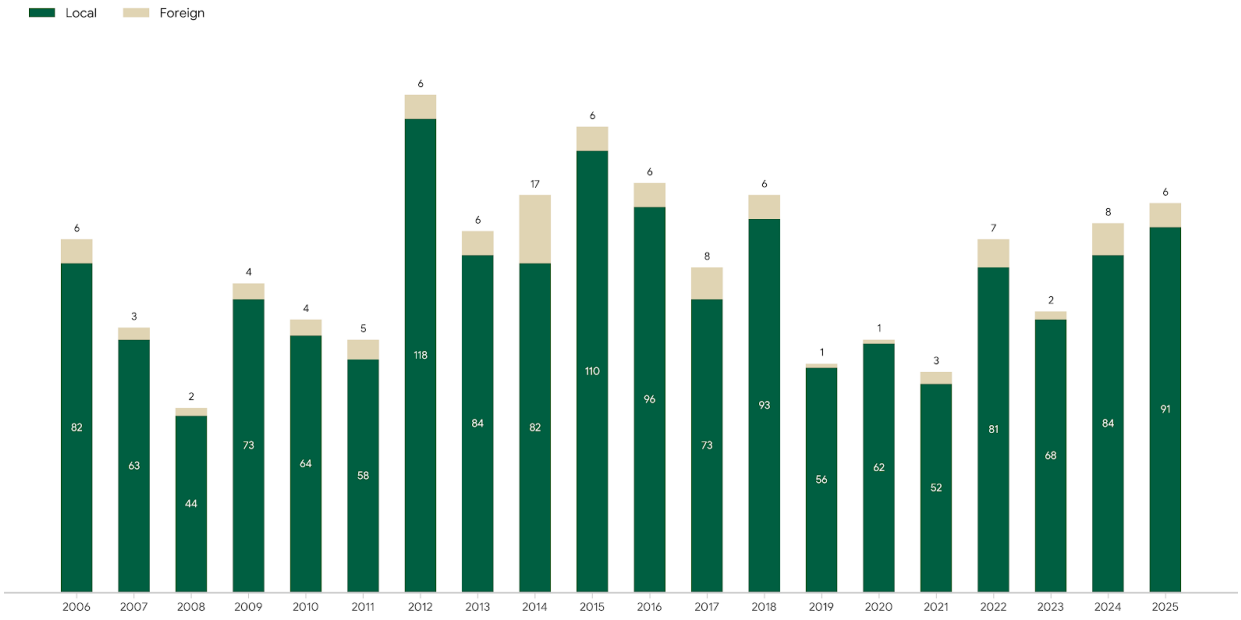

iii. Local/Foreign

Local journalists account for the large majority of killings, a trend which has been documented in previous reports by the Director-General on the safety of journalists. UNESCO data recorded 175 journalists (93%) who were killed in their country of origin, defined as local journalists for the purposes of UNESCO's monitoring.

Local journalists accounted for 90% of 127 journalists killed while reporting in armed conflict settings.

UNESCO data shows 14 killings of foreign journalists during this biennium.

FIGURE 8: Number of local and foreign journalists killed by year (2006-2025)

iv. Killings by Media Type

[13] Press and planet in danger: safety of environmental journalists; trends, challenges and recommendations, 2023, Paris, UNESCO.
[14] Ibid.

UNESCO historically categorises journalists according to the type of media they use in their work, including TV, print, online, radio, and cross-platform – with the latter becoming a predominant category given widespread media convergence due to new technologies.

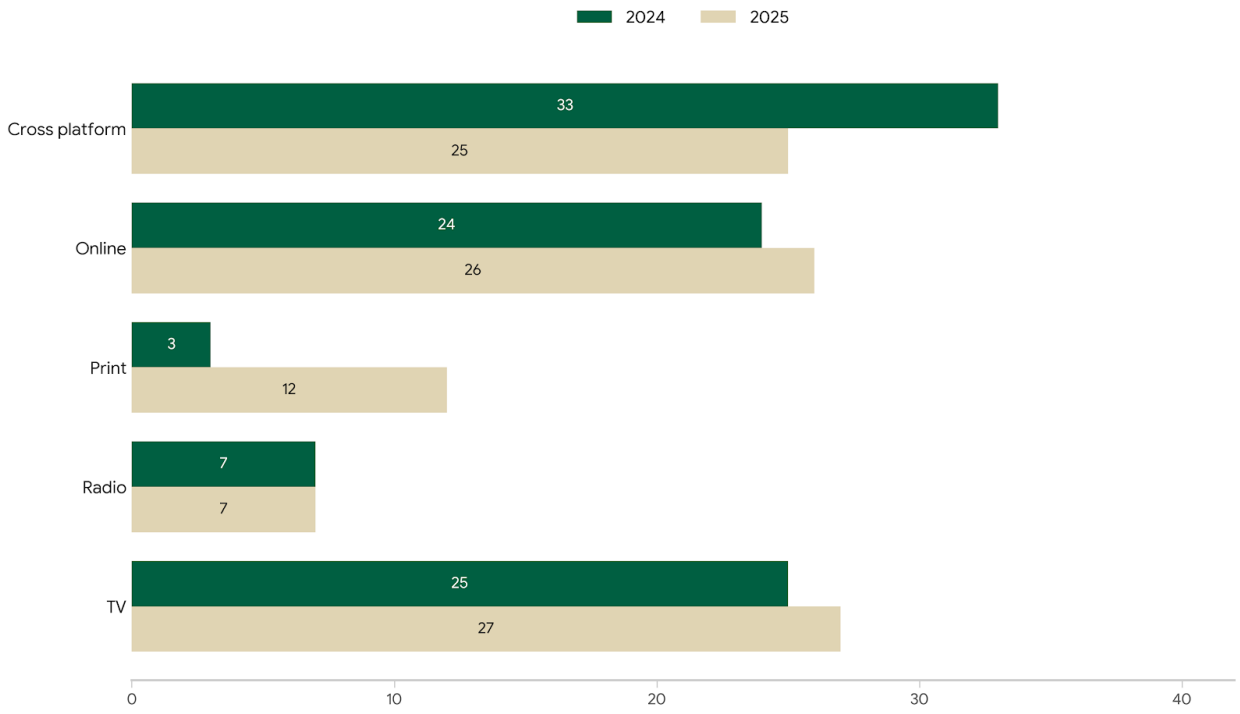

Over the previous two biennia (2020-2023) cross-platform journalists accounted for the largest share of verified killings. This trend continued in 2024-2025, with 58 cases involving cross-platform journalists, representing 31% of all cases.

TV journalists were the second largest group, with 52 cases, accounting for 28% of all cases.

Killings of online journalists had previously increased from 15% to 27% in 2022-2023, and remained at a similar level in 2024-2025, with 50 cases (26% of the total).

Radio journalists (14 cases) and print journalists (15 cases) accounting for 7% and 8% respectively.

v. Young Journalists

Youth is a priority group for UNESCO, defined statistically as within the 15–24-year age range. In the 2024-2025 biennium killings of journalists were recorded across all age groups.

UNESCO data shows that at least five young journalists were killed in the 2024-2025 biennium. This figure amounts to 3% of all killings recorded this biennium and the same figure that was recorded in the 2022-2023 biennium.

The number of journalists killed in the 25–29-year age range rose from 12 in the previous biennium to 20 cases in 2024-2025.[15]

[15] In some verified cases of killings UNESCO was unable to confirm the age of the journalist, media worker or social media producer.

4. State Reactions: Status of the Judicial Inquiries on Cases of Killed Journalists from 2006 to 2025

4.a. Overview of Responses

In October 2025, UNESCO requested updated information on the criminal and judicial status of 1,358 unresolved cases from 78 States, covering the period 1 January 2006 until 31 October 2025. During this period UNESCO verified a total of 1,637 cases of killed journalists.[16,17]

4.b. Comment on States' Response Rate

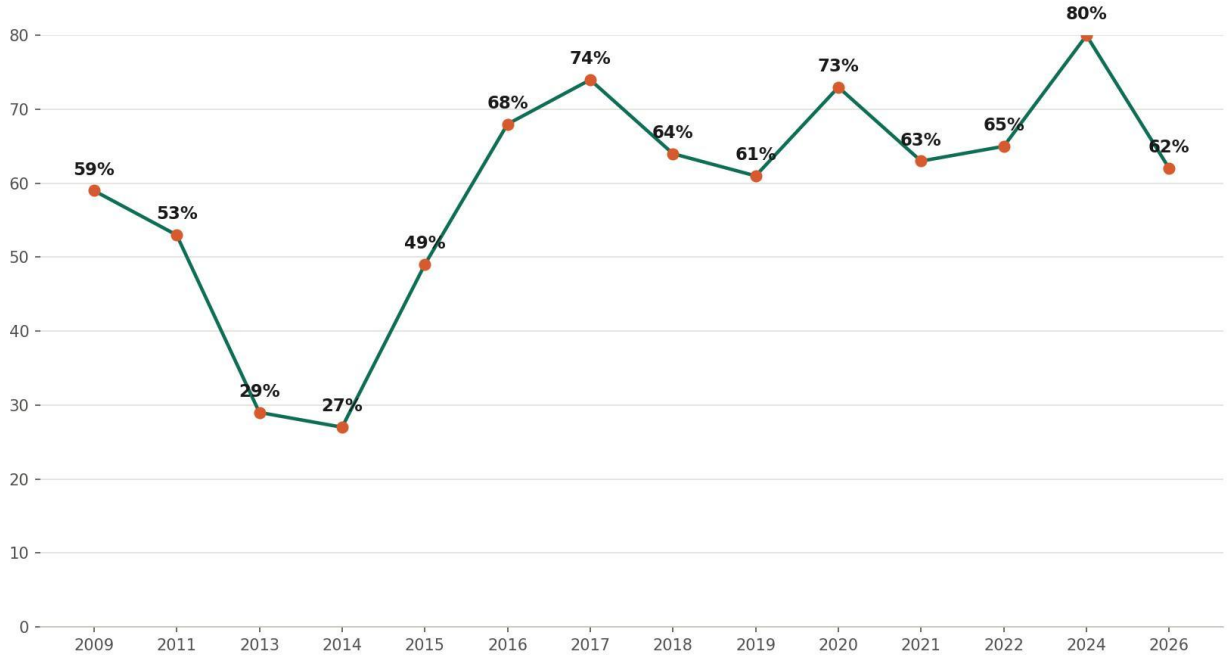

Out of 78 requests, 48 States reacted to the Director-General's requests, with 40 substantive responses and 8 acknowledgments.[20] Thirty (30) States did not react to the requests (See Annex F).

[19] Member state has indicated their intention to withdraw from the Organization effective from December 2026.

[20] Responses were received from Albania, Angola, Argentina, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Brazil, Chile, China, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Ghana, Greece, Indonesia, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Israel, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Lebanon, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mexico, Myanmar, Netherlands (Kingdom of the), Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Russian Federation, Saudi Arabia (Kingdom of), Slovakia, the State of Palestine, Syrian Arab Republic, Türkiye, Thailand, Ukraine, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Viet Nam. Acknowledgments were received from Guatemala, Haiti, India, Lesotho, Libya, Sri Lanka, Uganda, Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of).

The response rate to the 2026 Director-General's request was 62%, recording the lowest rate since 2019. Over the last decade the average response rate of States has been 68%.

FIGURE 11: State response rate (%) to the Director-General's request by year (2009-2026)[21]

The Intergovernmental Council of the IPDC in its 2024 Decision reiterated calls for Member States to authorise UNESCO to publish information on judicial follow-up on UNESCO's Digital Library (ref.:CI-24/COUNCIL.34/Item 9; para 6).

Nineteen (19) of the 48 States which reacted to the 2026 Director-General's request authorised the publication of information on the judicial cases of killing of journalists. This amounts to 40% of the total reactions received, the same percentage of the reaction received in both the 2022 and 2024 Director-General's requests (See Annex D).

4.c. Analysis of Impunity Rate

NOTE: While the Director-General condemned 1,637 cases between 1 January 2006 and 31 October 2025, the calculation of the impunity rate considers only 1,621 cases for which the Director-General requested updated information on their criminal and judicial status by 31 October 2025. An extra 16 killings that occurred during this period were later condemned and added to [21] Four States responded to the Director-General's 2024 request for information after the publication of the previous version of this report in November 2024, raising the response rate in 80%. Those States were Libya, the Maldives, Pakistan and Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of).

the Observatory of Killed Journalists and are therefore not included in the calculation of impunity. The 16 cases are also excluded from the regional impunity rates. For more details see Annex C.

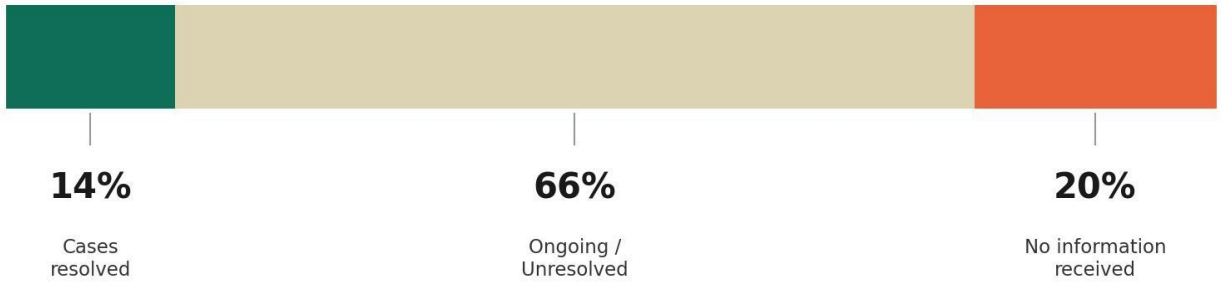

UNESCO's Director-General condemned the killings of 1,637 journalists between 1 January 2006 and 31 October 2025. By July 2026, 48 States had reacted to the Director-General's latest request to provide updated information on the 1,358 ongoing or unresolved cases of killed journalists.[22]

Slight Increase in Impunity Rate in 2026[23]

According to the submissions received from States, eleven additional cases were resolved in 2025-2026. Out of all cases recorded since 2006, 223 cases have been resolved 1013 cases were ongoing or unresolved, 23 cases attributed to actions of a foreign actor, and 41 judicially archived, with all judicial avenues for resolution having been exhausted. No updated information was provided for a further 321 unresolved cases, which UNESCO therefore continues to consider unresolved.

In 2026, the rate of impunity for the killing of journalists increased by one percentage point to 86%. Since 2012, the global rate of impunity for the killing of journalists had continuously decreased from its recorded historical high of 95% to 85% in 2024. In 2026, this trend has been reversed to the same impunity levels which had been recorded in 2022.[24]

Impunity Rate in Countries Not In Conflict

While the global impunity rate for killings of journalists around the world stands at 86%, this rate in countries not experiencing armed conflict was markedly lower at 77%. The impunity for cases of journalists killed in countries not experiencing armed conflict steadily decreased from 94% in 2012 to 77% in 2022, and has remained at this level for the past four years.

[22] The Director-General does not issue a request for update on cases which are deemed resolved, archived or attributed to actions of a foreign actor following the conclusion of the judicial process.
[23] While the Director-General condemned 1,637 cases between 1 January 2006 and 31 October 2025, the calculation of the impunity rate considers only 1,621 cases for which the Director-General requested updated information on their criminal and judicial status by 31 October 2025. An extra 16 killings that occurred during this period were later condemned and added to the Observatory of Killed Journalists and are therefore not included in the calculation of impunity. For more details see Annex C.
[24] 2022 Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity

Over the period from 1 January 2006 to 31 October 2025, 774 killings of journalists were recorded in countries not experiencing armed conflict. By 2026, 177 cases had been resolved, 447 cases were ongoing or unresolved, and 150 cases had not received any information on the judicial status.

Regional Trends in Impunity for Killings of Journalists

As the global rate for impunity for killings of journalists rose in the 2024-2025 biennium, regional data shows corresponding small increases in almost every region.

The Arab States continue to be the region with the highest rate of impunity for killings of journalists at 98%. This region also has the highest number of recorded killings, accounting for 496 cases. Only eight of these cases have been resolved. In the past biennium, no new cases of killed journalists were reported as resolved in this region, likely due to ongoing armed conflicts preventing the effective investigation and prosecution of perpetrators.

In Asia and the Pacific, the impunity rate declined to 88% of cases (49 solved cases out of 424).

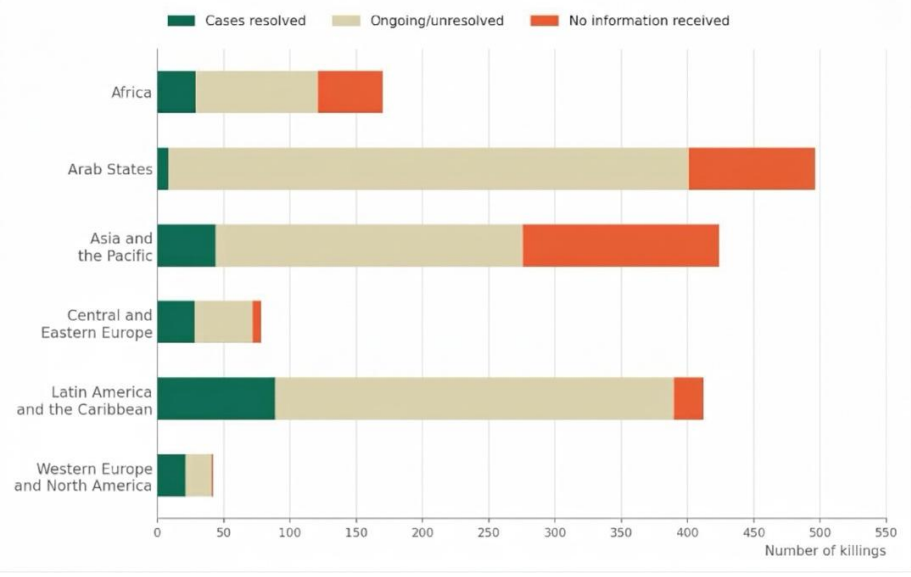

The rate of impunity in Africa rose for the first time in six years to 83% (29 solved cases out of 170). In the past biennium no new cases of killed journalists were resolved in this region.

In Latin America and the Caribbean, the impunity rate rose 1 percentage point to 78%, similar to levels recorded in 2022. This region accounted for 412 cases of killed journalists, 89 of which have been resolved.

In Central and Eastern Europe, the impunity rate rose significantly from 59% in 2024 to 65% in 2026. This region accounted for 77 cases of journalist killings, 27 of which have been resolved.

Western Europe and North America recorded an impunity rate of 50%, a single percentage point increase from 2024 and a 7-percentage point increase since 2022. The region accounted for 42 cases of journalist killings, 21 of which had been resolved.

Median Global Timeframe for Case Resolution[25]

The monitoring of the judicial follow up is triggered once a killing is recorded. Every two years the States where the killings took place receive a Director-General's request on the status of the criminal and judicial investigation regarding those killings. The figures in this section of the report are based on an analysis of the timeframe which spans from the recorded date of a killing, until it is communicated by the concerned State that the case in question has been resolved.

These statistics have remained largely the same as the previous Director-General's Report in 2024. From 1 January 2006 to 31 October 2025, among the 223 cases recorded as resolved, the median time between the killing and reported resolution was four years. Approximately two thirds of resolved cases reached that status within five years.

This data confirms for a third time that, of the cases that have ultimately been resolved, resolution is most likely to occur within 4-5 years of the killing. After this window, the probability of case resolution falls dramatically.

Regional timeframe for case resolution

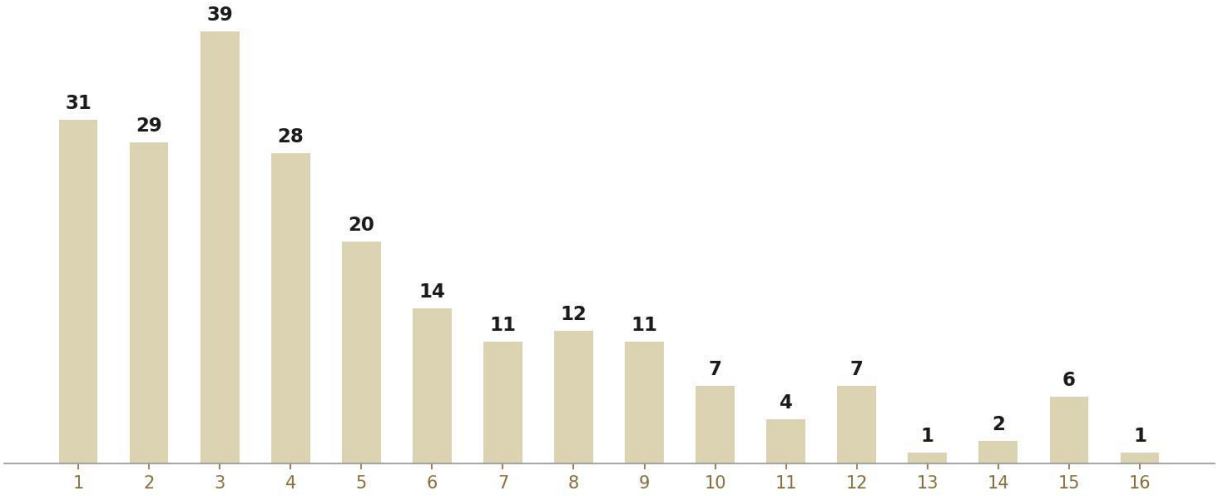

Like the previous 2022 and 2024 reports, both Western Europe and North America, and Latin America and the Caribbean are the regions with the fastest case resolution rate compared to other regions. According to UNESCO data, 95% of the resolved cases in Western Europe and North America reached that status within the median 4-year timeframe and 61% in Latin America and the Caribbean.

The above analysis is based on the use of the median global timeframe to measure the comparative speed of each region against this global median. The regional case resolution rate is calculated by inverting the regional impunity rate from the previous section (e.g. the resolution rate for cases of journalists killed in Africa is 17%).

A comparison was then made between each region's case resolution rate and the percentage of cases from the respective region which had been resolved within the global median, i.e. 4 years.

[25] For the purposes of these calculations UNESCO takes into account the calendar year when the killing took place and the calendar year when it was resolved, as opposed to a specific month.

FIGURE 14: Length of time for case resolution in years (2006-2025)

4.d. State Reporting on Measures to Promote Safety of Journalists and to Combat Impunity

Twenty-six (26) States reported on measures aimed at promoting safety and combatting impunity in their response to the Director-General's requests in 2026.[26] This accounts for 33% of 78 States to which requests were sent less than for the previous 2024 report.

In 2024, thirty-five (35) out of 75 States reported on this section, representing 47% of all States.

Total: 40 State Responses

✓ Response on measures implemented (26)
X No information on measures provided (14)

i. Legislative and regulatory measures

In response to the request to provide information on actions taken to promote the safety of journalists and combatting impunity, several States reported having adopted or being in the process of adopting laws, regulatory frameworks, and institutional reforms containing provisions related to the safety of journalists and media professionals.

Sixteen (16) States reported on legislative and regulatory measures aimed at promoting the safety of journalists and combating impunity, namely Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Brazil, Chile, China, Colombia, Greece, Indonesia, Kazakhstan, Lebanon, Malta, Netherlands (Kingdom of the), Paraguay and Saudi Arabia (Kingdom of), Ukraine and Uruguay.[27]

[26] Responses were received from Albania, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Brazil, Chile, China, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Ghana, Greece, Indonesia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Lebanon, Malta, Myanmar, Netherlands (Kingdom of the), Palestine (State of), Paraguay, Peru, the Russian Federation, Saudi Arabia (Kingdom of), Slovakia, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and Ukraine.
[27] Uruguay provided information proactively on measures implemented for the safety of journalists on 15 July 2026, although no killings of journalists were recorded in that country.

Bahrain reported on the passage of amendments in 2025 to its Press, Printing and Publishing Law, on the detention of journalists.

Brazil reported having adopted the "National Protocol for the Investigation of Crimes against Journalists and Social Communicators", an initiative carried out by the Observatory on Violence against Journalists and Social Communicators. This safety mechanism has also been included in UNESCO's Repository of National Safety Mechanisms.

In April 2024, Chile adopted a "Protocol on the Protection of Human Rights Defenders", which includes journalists and media professionals.

In 2025, Indonesia strengthened and renewed two longstanding Memorandums of Understandings on the safety of journalists, between the Indonesian Press Council, and the Office of the Attorney General and the Witness and Victim Protection Agency. In January 2026, Indonesia adopted a Memorandum of Understanding between the Indonesian Press Council and the National Commission on Human Rights concerning the Protection of Press Freedom. The protocol aims to strengthen institutional cooperation to protect journalists from violence.

In August 2024, Kazakhstan adopted the Law "On Mass Media". Among other provisions, the law requires employers to provide personal protective equipment to journalists when reporting on dangerous assignments.

In July 2024, Malta adopted the "Strategic Lawsuits Against Public Participation Order" (SLAPPs), to strengthen protections of journalists against abusive litigation aimed at silencing journalism. Malta also reported on the adoption of the "European Media Freedom Act (Measures for Implementation) Order" in 2025, introducing safeguards for public media for public service media governance. This was in the context of European Union Member States implementing the EU directives on media freedom and anti-SLAPP.

Slovakia reported on the development of a draft methodology for police procedures to protect journalists at high-risk mass events in connection with the Strategy for the Prevention of Crime and Other Anti-Social Activities in the Slovak Republic until 2028. This strategy is included as a national action plan in UNESCO's Repository of National Safety Mechanisms.

Ukraine reported on the adoption of "Law No. 4016-IX", amending Article 15 of the Law of Ukraine "On State Support for Media, Guarantees of Professional Activity, and Social Protection of Journalists" in October 2024. The law ensures media companies provide life, health, and disability insurance for journalists and other media workers against accidents occurring in armed conflict.

ii. Measures regarding institutional mechanisms and investigative bodies

Twelve (12) States reported on the establishment or strengthening of institutional mechanisms and investigative bodies aimed at promoting the safety of journalists and combating impunity, namely Albania, Bahrain, Brazil, Colombia, Ghana, Netherlands (Kingdom of the), the State of Palestine, Slovakia, Peru, Paraguay, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and Ukraine.

Albania reported on the designation of a dedicated contact point for reporting attacks against journalists at the General Prosecution Office and the role of the Ombudsman in addressing discrimination, online harassment and gender-based violence affecting journalists, including women journalists.

Colombia reported the adoption of Resolution No. 0088 (2025), strengthening prosecutorial responses to crimes against journalists. The decision created the Internal Working Group for the Investigation and Prosecution of Human Rights Violations against Journalists and Media Workers (Grupo Interno de Trabajo para la Investigación y Judicialización de Violaciones a los Derechos Humanos contra Periodistas y Trabajadores de los Medios de Comunicación debido a su Oficio) within the Attorney General's Office.

The Netherlands (Kingdom of the) reported on strengthening the existing safety mechanism, PersVeilig, included in UNESCO's Repository of National Safety Mechanisms. The developments include: the addition of a reporting point and direct support in case of incidents, increased training courses on practical safety measures, and regularly commissioning research and monitoring of attacks.

Peru reported on the establishment of the Intersectoral Mechanism for the Protection of Human Rights Defenders (Mecanismo Intersectorial para la Protección de las Personas Defensoras de Derechos Humanos) in 2025.

In 2026, Slovakia reported on the launching of a new Platform for the Promotion of Press Freedom and the Protection of Journalists as a permanent coordinating body for implementing actions and commitments for promotion of press freedom and protection of journalists. In 2026, a "Working group on assessment of the Impact of Generative Artificial Intelligence (GAI) on News Reporting" and a "Working group on assessment of Challenges of Adopting AI-Based Technologies in Newsrooms and Their Implications for the Trustworthiness of Journalism" was established by the Platform.

Ukraine reported on the creation of the Coordination Committee for the Council of Europe's "Journalists Matter Campaign" in April 2024. This safety mechanism is included in UNESCO's Repository of National Safety Mechanisms. The coordination committee ensures a multistakeholder approach to implement the Council of Europe Action Plan for the Journalists Matter Campaign.

Ukraine also reported on the establishment of a Working Group on Countering SLAPPs under the Parliamentary Committee on Freedom of Speech. The Working Group developed a strategy for integrating Council of Europe standards on countering SLAPPs into Ukrainian legislation, and it is tasked with developing effective legislative mechanisms.

iii. Measures regarding data collection, monitoring and reporting systems

Six (6) States reported measures related to data collection, monitoring and reporting systems on the safety of journalists, namely Azerbaijan, Colombia, Ecuador, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia (Kingdom of) and the State of Palestine.

Azerbaijan reported on the annual reports prepared by the Commissioner for Human Rights (Ombudsman) on the state of the right to information.

Colombia reported on the development of a specialised register detailing threats and attacks against women journalists, which is being developed as part of its existing Observatory for Human Rights (Observatorio de Derechos Humanos). This initiative is part of a reparations order from the Inter-American Court of Human Rights and received technical support from UNESCO.

In 2025, Ecuador reported on the adoption of the "Protocol for Action on Attacks Against Media Professionals" (Protocolo de Actuación y Articulación ante Agresiones a Personas Trabajadoras de la Comunicación) by the Council for Development and Promotion of Information and Communication. The Protocol strengthens the Council's ability for internal coordination and monitoring to ensure the safety of media professionals.

iv. Training and Capacity Building

Ten (10) States reported on trainings and capacity-building initiatives aimed at promoting the safety of journalists, namely Albania, Azerbaijan, Ecuador, Ghana, Kyrgyzstan, Lebanon, Myanmar, Netherlands (Kingdom of the), the State of Palestine, and the Russian Federation.

In 2025, Albania reported on three training workshops in the cities of Fier, Shkoder and Korce with prosecutors, judicial police officers, State Police, media representatives and civil society, supported by the OSCE and the School of Magistrates on anti-SLAPP standards.

Kyrgyzstan reported on multiple workshops and trainings held for journalists from 2024-2025. The trainings focused on media literacy, coverage of environmental emergencies, online risk awareness, gender sensitive reporting and journalism ethics.

Lebanon reported on a tripartite partnership agreement between the Ministry of Information, UNESCO, and the International Organisation of La Francophonie, to train journalists in verification and production of visual reports.

The State of Palestine reported on safety training courses in digital security for journalists in the West Bank and Gaza in cooperation with OneEifrah Foundation.

The Russian Federation reported on two training sessions conducted in 2025, in cooperation with the Russian Union of Journalists, on safety when working in high-risk zones.

v. Awareness-raising initiatives and partnerships

Five (5) States reported on awareness-raising initiatives and partnerships aimed at promoting the safety of journalists, namely Azerbaijan, Ecuador, Kyrgyzstan, Lebanon, and the Russian Federation.

Kyrgyzstan reported on two awareness raising initiatives for safety of journalists, like the 25th OSCE Representative on Freedom of the Media Central Asian Media Conference and a National Coalition Dialogue Forum on Advancing Media initiatives in November 2025.

Lebanon reported on a national media literacy campaign in July 2025 conducted in cooperation with UNESCO and the Organisation Internationale de la Francophonie.

The Russian Federation reported on the XXIX Forum of Modern Journalism in Sochi in September 2025.

4.e. State Reporting on Actions and Good Practices in Tackling the Gender Dimension of Journalists' Safety

Twenty-one (21) States reported on actions and good practices aimed at tackling the gender dimension of journalists' safety in their response to the Director-General's requests in 2026.[28] This accounts for 27% of all 78 States requested, less than the previous 2024 report.

In 2024, twenty-four (24) out of 75 States reported on this section, accounting for 32% of all States that responded.

Total: 40 State Responses

✓ Response on measures tackling women journalists' safety (21)
X No information on gender-related measures provided (19)

i. Legislative and regulatory measures

Eight (8) States reported on legislative and regulatory measures aimed at promoting the safety of journalists in general and combating impunity, namely Azerbaijan, Chile, Colombia, Ghana, Lebanon, Myanmar, Saudi Arabia (Kingdom of) and Slovakia.

In April 2024, Chile adopted a "Protocol on the Protection of Human Rights Defenders", which includes journalists and media professionals. Article 3 of the Protocol includes a specific gender dimension.

ii. Institutional Bodies and Other Initiatives

Two (2) States reported on the creation of institutional bodies or initiatives to promote the safety of women journalists, namely Colombia and Ukraine.

Colombia reported on the creation of a fund for the safety of women journalists, the Fund for the Prevention, Protection and Assistance of Women Journalists Victims of Gender Violence in 2024. This national safety mechanism is included in UNESCO's Repository of National Safety Mechanisms.

Ukraine reported on the launching an interactive tool to document cases of online violence against Ukrainian women journalists targeted for their professional activities, called the "Interactive Map Tracking Online Attacks on Women Journalists".

iii. Reports, Plans of Action or Other Agreements

Six (6) States reported on the development of action plans, documents, research or other agreements to promote press freedom and the safety of women journalists, namely Albania, Azerbaijan, Dominican Republic, Indonesia, the Netherlands (Kingdom of the) and Ukraine.

[28] Responses were received from Albania, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Chile, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Ghana, Indonesia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Lebanon, Malta, Myanmar, Netherlands (Kingdom of the), Palestine (State of), Peru, the Russian Federation, Saudi Arabia (Kingdom of), Slovakia and Ukraine.

Albania reported on a document launched in December 2025 called “Media narratives, visibility, inequality and gender-based violence in politics during the 2025 elections” at the Parliament of Albania by the Equality in Decision-making Network and BIRN with the support of UN Women.

Azerbaijan reported on a study into the state of gender equality in media entities and journalistic organizations carried out by the Press Council of Azerbaijan late 2024.

Indonesia reported that the Press Council released “Guidelines for the Prevention and Handling of Sexual Violence in the Press Environment” in April 2024. The Guidelines aim to prevent sexual violence in the workplace and promote a safe environment in media companies.

Indonesia also reported in June 2025 the signing of a “Joint Decree between the Press Council, the Witness and Victim Protection Agency and the National Commission on Violence against Women Number” to strengthen protection for women journalists.

Ukraine reported that in 2025, several studies were conducted and published, particularly on gender-based threats and gendered online violence against Ukrainian women journalists.

iv. Training and Capacity Building

Five (5) States reported on capacity building and training workshops organised to increase awareness and understanding of threats to women journalists and promote the safety of women journalists, namely, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Kazakhstan, Netherlands (Kingdom of the) and Slovakia.

Ecuador reported that in 2025, several dialogue spaces were held to discuss women journalists and safety, as well as other topics like ethics and digital safety.

Kazakhstan reported that in 2025 at least three separate journalist training workshops were held dedicated to the safety of women journalists. Two of these trainings were held in Al-Farabi Kazakh National University and in cooperation with UNESCO.

Kazakhstan also reported on the development of an online course for “Media Coverage of Violence against Women and Girls” with Open KazNU platform, which includes modules on ethics of interviewing, working with gender statistics, combating cyberbullying against female journalists.

The Netherlands (Kingdom of the) reported that, as part of the PersVeilig initiative, special training session have been held for women journalists on dealing with intimidation, and how to deal with inappropriate or transgressive behaviour.

v. Awareness-raising Campaigns

Three (3) States reported on the implementation of awareness-raising campaigns specific to the safety of women journalists or raising key concerns related to women journalist safety, namely, Albania, Kazakhstan and Kyrgyzstan.

Albania reported that in December 2025 a conference on “Women at the Center: Strengthening Media and Inclusive Approaches in Albania” was held in cooperation with Albanian Women in Audiovisual and the Science, Technology and Innovation for Development Foundation (SCiDEV).

Kazakhstan reported that an international roundtable, “Gender Equality in Modern Kazakhstan”, was held, attended by UN experts and media researchers to analyse the transformation of gender roles and its reflection in the press.

In March 2025, Kyrgyzstan conducted a media campaign marking 100 years of the women’s rights movement, in cooperation with the OSCE, highlighting the role of women in public life, including the work of women journalists.

In December 2025, Kyrgyzstan reported that the Ombudsman’s Office, the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe and International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance in Central Asia, brought together authorities, civil society, media and women journalists to participate in an awareness raising quiz on the safety of women journalists.

5. Information on Non-lethal Attacks Against Journalists

UNESCO does not systematically collect data on non-lethal attacks against journalists in the framework of Resolution 29 on the Condemnation of violence against journalists. Nevertheless, the Organization does compile some data on non-lethal attacks as part of its issue briefs on urgent issues related to the safety of journalists and the issue of impunity, under the World Trends in Freedom of Expression and Media Freedom series, as per Resolution 53 of the 36th General Conference which directs UNESCO to "work with other UN agencies and other relevant organizations to monitor the state of press freedom and the safety of journalists and report on developments in these areas to the General Conference."

Therefore, as per the 2024 IPDC Decision at the 34th Intergovernmental Council meeting, requesting the Director-General to provide "more information on non-lethal attacks against journalists in line with the synergies of the UPR methodology and the reporting on SDG 16.10.1" in her report, the section below presents available data from international civil society organisations specialised in the safety of journalists which hold consultative or associate status with the Organization.[29]

The UN Statistics Division outlines five areas of non-lethal criminal conduct which are considered to impact the achievement of SDG Target 16.10 to "ensure public access to information and protect fundamental freedoms, in accordance with national legislation and international agreements."

These areas of non-lethal criminal conducts are: enforced disappearances; acts of torture; arbitrary imprisonment; kidnapping; and other harmful acts, which include sexual violence, threats, coercion, harassment, stalking, psychological violence, invasion of privacy and discrimination.[30]

5.a. Data from accredited organizations

i. Enforced Disappearance and Kidnapping

Over the biennium, Reporters Without Borders reported at least 160 journalists who were "disappeared," 64 of whom were reported as cases of "enforced disappearance."[31] Reporters Without Borders also recorded at least 29 journalists having been taken as hostages or continued to be held hostage over the same period.[32] These cases were recorded in at least 45 States.

The Committee to Protect Journalists, meanwhile, recorded at least 98 journalists as "missing" in 2024 and 2025.[33] These cases were recorded in at least 25 countries.

ii. Imprisonment and Arbitrary Detention

Reporters Without Borders recorded at least 938 journalists as "detained" in connection with their journalistic activity in at least 72 States in the period 2024-2025, including cases that were either ongoing or had ended during the reporting period.[34] This figure is lower than in the previous biennium (2022-2023).

The Committee to Protect Journalists, meanwhile, recorded at least 466 cases of "imprisoned" journalists, in at least 49 States. This figure includes only cases of journalists that were still imprisoned as of 1 December in 2024 and 2025, respectively, as part of an annual "census". It does not include cases of journalists that were imprisoned at one time and released during the reporting period.[35]

iii. Other Harmful Acts

a. Gender-based Online Attacks

In 2025, UN Women and ICFJ, in cooperation with UNESCO, conducted a comparable survey building on the 2021 UNESCO-ICFJ survey[36] and released new data identifying trends in online violence and its impact among women journalists.[37]

The most recent survey found that women journalists and media workers are self-censoring at a rate of 45%, which is 50% higher than reported in 2021 (30%). Women journalists were twice as likely (22%) to report online violence incidents to the police than they were in 2021 (11%). Women journalists were also more likely (14%) to take legal action against perpetrators and facilitators of online violence compared to 2021 (8%).

b. Limited Freedom of Movement of Journalists

Across the globe, an unprecedented number of journalists are living in exile or displacement, media professionals are being detained, and entire "zones of silence" remain largely inaccessible

[33] This data was taken from CPJ's database (filter Missing). For details about CPJ's Methodology see: https://cpj.org/data-methodology/. Date accessed was 19 August 2026.

[35] This data was taken from CPJ's database (filter - Imprisoned). Date accessed was 19 August 2026.
[36] In 2021, a UNESCO-led study, called The Chilling: global trends in online violence against women journalists; research discussion paper (2021), coordinated by the International Center for Journalists (ICFJ), found alarming trends and data on gendered attacks on journalists. The study found that 73% of women journalists surveyed had experienced online violence, 25% of the women journalists had received threats of physical violence, including death threats, 18% had received threats of sexual violence, and 13% had received serious threats directed at close family members.

to the media. These realities represent only a fraction of a broader set of growing challenges to the free movement of independent and professional journalists.

Journalists, including foreign correspondents face limitations or bans on accessing (or exiting) countries and specific areas, the denial or withdrawal of visas, as well as restrictions on their capacity to report freely and independently. Journalists may also be forced to flee their own countries due to threats, persecution, or conflict, severely affecting their ability to continue reporting. Local journalists working for non-domestic/international media are increasingly labelled as “foreign agents” by law, or may equally face travel bans.

Local and international war reporters face increased safety risks, especially due to direct exposure to crossfire as well as deliberate targeting even far away from the frontline. Exiled and displaced journalists fleeing from attacks often encounter significant obstacles to relocating safely, including during internal displacement, when crossing international borders, and in obtaining legal status and protection in third countries.

Even after reaching safety abroad, more journalists have to cope with transnational repression, as they may continue to be the target of hostile actions, such as revocation of passports, threats against family members, digital surveillance, the use of Interpol Red Notices and diffusions to seek their arrest or extradition.

It is against this backdrop that UNESCO has supported freedom of movement for journalists, as part of UNESCO’s coordination of the implementation of the UN Plan of Action on Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity. The Organization aims to upscale its “Safe Spaces” flagship initiative that protects displaced, exiled, and conflict-zone journalists; as well as providing concrete legal support for relocated, exiled, and displaced journalists and media professionals facing barriers to safe mobility, legal status and continued professional activity, with particular attention to women journalists. Furthermore, it will advocate for and support the enlargement of emergency visas schemes for journalists, ensuring that eligibility criteria and relocation mechanisms are responsive to the specific protection needs of women journalists, including survivors of gender-based violence and journalists facing family-related reprisals.

6. Other Monitoring and Reporting Mechanisms on the Safety of Journalists

As part of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, UNESCO, as co-custodian of SDG indicator 16.10.1, reported on its monitoring of the indicator to the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in 2024 and 2025.

UNESCO's data on the killings of journalists was used in the Global Progress Report on Sustainable Development Goal 16: Indicators on Peaceful, Just and Inclusive Societies in 2024 and 2025.

UNESCO's data on killings of journalists in countries experiencing armed conflict was also used in the annual Secretary General's Report on the Protection of Civilians in Armed Conflict in 2024 and 2025.

6.a. Voluntary National Reviews: Reporting on SDG 16.10.1 in 2024 and 2025

Voluntary National Reviews (VNRs) are a mechanism which allow countries to report voluntarily on the implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), as part of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, and to share their experiences and the lessons they learned with the aim of accelerating the implementation of the 2030 Agenda.

VNRs are an occasion for States to voluntarily report progress on SDG indicator 16.10.1.[38]

In 2024-2025, UNESCO noted significant increases in State reporting specifically on 16.10.1. Previously, in the 2020, 2022 and 2024 Director-General's Reports, very few States reported on 16.10.1, and opted to report generally on the topic of access to information or 16.10.2.

In 2024, thirty-six (36) States submitted Voluntary National Reviews. Six (6) States made explicit reference to safety of journalists or reported on 16.10.1, these include Austria, Brazil, Ecuador, Kenya, Samoa and Sierra Leone.

In 2025, thirty-five (35) States submitted Voluntary National Reviews. Five (5) States made explicit reference to safety of journalists or reported on 16.10.1, these include Angola, Bangladesh, Eswatini, Japan and Qatar.

6.b. Increasing Engagement with the Universal Periodic Review

In the 2024-2025 biennium, UNESCO continued to increase its engagement with and contribution to the Universal Periodic Review (UPR) mechanism, a state-led peer-reviewed process examining States' human rights records. UNESCO continued to submit inputs to the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) concerning the legal framework pertaining to freedom of expression of States under review, and to the implementation of this framework.

UNESCO has also strengthened the capacities of States and other stakeholders involved in the UPR process to draft recommendations, implement recommendations, and report on the implementation of recommendations, including in the area of freedom of expression and safety of journalists, through its various resources on Freedom of Expression and the Universal Periodic Review.

In 2018, the Intergovernmental Council of the IPDC adopted a Decision which invited the Director-General to further strengthen her Report on the Safety of Journalists, including by "reinforcing synergies with the methodology of the Universal Periodic Review (UPR) and the overall reporting on SDG 16.10.1". This was reinforced by IPDC decisions in 2020, 2022 and 2024.

In follow-up to this call, as well as to the Secretary-General's Executive Committee's Decision 2018/35 in 2018 calling for the UN System to reinvigorate its engagement with the UPR process, and the Secretary-General's Call to Action for Human Rights in 2020, UNESCO launched an initiative supported by the Multi-Donor Programme on Freedom of Expression and the Safety of Journalists.

The initiative, called "Enhancing Freedom of Expression, the Safety of Journalists and Access to Information through the UN's Universal Periodic Review", aimed at strengthening the presence of UPR recommendations in the field of freedom of expression, safety of journalists and access to information.

The initiative strengthened UNESCO's engagement with stakeholders to make SMART recommendations (specific, measurable, actionable, relevant, and time-bound) to help facilitate and ensure local follow-up, through capacity building and the development of a series of guidelines for all relevant stakeholders in 2021, 2022 and 2023.

In the 2024-2025 biennium, during the 45th-50th UPR Working Group Sessions, eighty-four (84) States were reviewed.[39] According to data from the OHCHR's Universal Human Rights Index (UHRI), from the 21,867 recommendations made during these sessions, 871 (4%) addressed the theme of freedom of opinion and expression and access to information under SDG Target 16.10. This shows a nominal increase in recommendations on freedom of expression from 821 to 871 since the 2022-2023 period, however overall it shows a decrease in the prominence of recommendations on freedom of expression as part of the UPR exercise, which have gone from 5.5% to 4% of all recommendations.

However, out of the 871 recommendations which were made, 69% were supported by the receiving State, a higher percentage compared to previous 41st-44th sessions, which was 65%.

6.c. Reports and Publications Addressing the Topic of Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity

i. International Intergovernmental Reports and Publications

The United Nations Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression released multiple reports which included information on the safety for journalists and the issue of impunity with the support of UNESCO's Global Media Defence Fund.

The report on Threats to freedom of expression online in turbulent times, A/80/341 (18 August 2025), examines the rapid transformation of the online information ecosystem, due to State regulation and geopolitical pressures, reshapes freedom of expression and its implications for the safety of journalists.

In June 2025, the Special Rapporteur released a report on Freedom of expression and elections in the digital age, A/HRC/59/50. In August 2024 the Special Rapporteur released a report on Global threats to freedom of expression arising from the conflict in Gaza, A/79/319. In April 2024, the Special Rapporteur released a report on Journalists in exile, A/HRC/56/53.

The Report of the United Nations Secretary-General (A/80/345) on The Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity (21 August 2025), provides an overview and recommendations to address recent global developments affecting the safety of journalists and media workers, with a particular focus on those reporting on climate change, environmental degradation, and disaster-related events. UNESCO contributed data on the killings of journalists to this report.

UNESCO's quadrennial World Trends in Freedom of Expression and Media Development Global Report, Journalism: Shaping a World at Peace 2022/2025 underscored the profound role of free, independent, pluralistic, and professional journalism as a cornerstone of democratic life and as an indispensable condition for achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Despite some positive developments such as the expansion of social media access, growth in collaborative investigative journalism, subscription models, and legal recognition of community media, this new Report reveals a 10% decline in the Freedom of Expression Index globally since 2012, and highlights weakened governance, hostility towards journalists, the climate crisis, and AI-driven dis and misinformation. Progress on gender equality has stalled, and women continuously face discrimination and violence. Media self-censorship has surged, with journalists avoiding critical or 'risky' topics. This has grown by nearly 5% annually, amounting to a 63% increase between 2012–2024.

ii. Regional Intergovernmental Reports and Publications

At the 83rd Ordinary Session of the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights (ACHPR), the Special Rapporteur on Freedom of Expression and Access to Information in Africa published an Intersession Report which included information on the safety of journalists (29 May 2025). The Report examines developments concerning freedom of expression and access to information in Africa from November 2024 to May 2025, including threats affecting journalists and media practitioners. It highlights reports of attacks, harassment, detention, enforced disappearances and other violations against journalists, and recalls States' obligations to investigate attacks, prosecute perpetrators and ensure a safe environment for media workers.

The Council of Europe (CoE) Platform to Promote the Protection of Journalism and Safety of Journalists released its annual report, in 2024 and 2025. The Reports review threats in 2023 and 2024, noting that despite declines in numbers of killings, the alerts published on the Safety of Journalists Platform show a growing diversity of threats, pressures and constraints under which journalists must carry out their mission including the use of spyware against journalists, abusive lawsuits, threats and intimidation, detention of media workers, and the increasingly precarious situation of journalists in exile.

The European Commission published the Rule of Law Report 2025 (8 July 2025). The Report assesses developments concerning the rule of law across European Union Member States, including media pluralism, journalist safety and the independence of media actors. It identifies ongoing challenges such as threats and attacks against journalists, strategic lawsuits against public participation (SLAPPs), political pressure on media organizations, and concerns regarding media ownership and transparency.

The Organization of American States' (OAS) Special Rapporteur for Freedom of Expression's released a Practical Guide: Registering Intermediate Actions – A Strategy to Monitor the Progress of Criminal Investigations of Crimes Against Journalists (27 October 2025). The Guide provides a methodology for monitoring investigations into crimes against journalists, combatting then impunity and strengthening accountability.

The Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe's (OSCE) Representative on Freedom of the Media's released a Report on Enhancing Protection of Journalists under Severe Political Pressure (18 September 2025). The Report examines the challenges faced by journalists working under severe political pressure, with particular attention to those in exile who continue to face threats, digital surveillance, transnational repression, legal harassment and barriers to continuing their professional work.

The OSCE's Representative on Freedom of the Media released a report on Safeguarding Media Freedom in the Age of Big Tech Platforms and AI (22 October 2025). This policy manual examines the impact of digital platforms and artificial intelligence on media freedom, including risks affecting journalists such as online harassment, algorithmic visibility, content moderation practices and information manipulation.

The Freedom Online Coalition (FOC) and Media Freedom Coalition (MFC) published the Paris Declaration on Multilateral Action for Information Integrity and Independent Media (29 October 2025). The Declaration reaffirms the importance of independent, pluralistic and reliable journalism as a global public good. It calls for strengthened multilateral cooperation, sustainable support for independent media, and coordinated action to protect journalists and ensure that digital transformations uphold freedom of expression and access to reliable information.

The OSCE's Representative on Freedom of the Media presented its Second Report to the OSCE Permanent Council, the Media Freedom in a Changing Information Environment (28 November 2025). The Report examines the transformation of the information environment and its implications for media freedom and journalists' safety across the OSCE region.

The Council of Europe's Steering Committee on Media and Information Society (CDMSI) adopted a Mid-term Evaluation of the CoE Campaign for the Safety of Journalists in 2025. The document details the lessons learned and changes needed to ensure that the Campaign has lasting structural institutional effects which positively impact press freedom in Member States.

6.d. Resolutions, Decisions and Other Normative Texts Addressing the Topic of Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity

i. UNESCO Resolutions and Decisions

The 2024 IPDC Decision on the Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity, and the United Nations Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity (13 December 2024). The Decision reaffirms the role of UNESCO's International Programme for the Development of Communication in monitoring threats against journalists and promoting accountability for crimes committed against them. The Decision encourages Member States to provide information on judicial processes concerning journalist killings, strengthen national mechanisms for the safety of journalists, and develop multi-stakeholder approaches to address impunity.

The Decision on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity was adopted at UNESCO's 221st Executive Board (16 May 2025). The Decision reaffirms UNESCO's continued leadership in the implementation of the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity and welcomes progress made in addressing emerging challenges, including the safety of women journalists, crisis response, digital threats to journalists, and information integrity. The Decision requests continued support for Member States in establishing national action plans and mechanisms on the safety of journalists.

In November 2025, Member States of UNESCO approved Major Programme V – Communication and Information, including safety of journalists as part of the key organizational mandate.

ii. International Intergovernmental Resolutions, Statements and Declarations

On the occasion of World Press Freedom Day (WPFD) 2024 and 2025, the Special Rapporteurs on Freedom of Expression issued joint declarations on pertinent issues for the safety of journalists and the issue of impunity. In 2024, the Declaration recognizes the essential role of journalists in reporting on environmental and climate issues, calling on States to strengthen protection mechanisms, combat impunity and prevent judicial harassment. In 2025, the Declaration warned of the implications of AI on freedom of expression and on media freedom.

On the occasion of World Press Freedom Day in 2024 and 2025, joint statements were issued by the UN Presidents, comprising the Presidents of the United Nations General Assembly, the General Conference of UNESCO, the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC), the Human Rights Council (HRC), and the Chairperson of the Executive Board of UNESCO. These joint statements highlight how journalism, and protecting journalists, is critical to addressing global challenges like climate change, environmental degradation and the impact of emerging new technologies.

Resolution A/RES/79/1 on the Pact for the Future adopted by the General Assembly (September 2024), recognized the importance of an open, safe, and secure digital environment, as well as access to information and freedom of expression as essential elements of international cooperation. It specifically refers to the protection of journalists in situations of armed conflict and reaffirms their status as civilians in such situations.

The Global Digital Compact was adopted in the Annex of Resolution A/79/1 by the UN General Assembly (2024). It commits to strengthening information integrity, a part of which is promoting diverse and resilient information ecosystems, including by strengthening independent and public media and supporting journalists and media workers.

Resolution A/HRC/RES/59/15 on the safety of journalists adopted by the UN Human Rights Council (7 July 2025) recognises the essential role exercised by journalists and media workers in promoting human rights, strengthening accountability, and ensuring access to information. The Resolution called to engage forensic professionals as key stakeholders to tackle impunity for crimes against journalists and requested a joint study on national frameworks for the safety of journalists to be conducted by OHCHR and UNESCO.

Resolution A/RES/80/217 adopted by the UN General Assembly (December 2025) reaffirms the importance of protecting journalists and media workers in the exercise of their profession. It calls upon States to prevent attacks against journalists, strengthen efforts to combat impunity, and ensure effective investigations and accountability for crimes committed against journalists.

iii. Regional Intergovernmental Resolutions

The Recommendation CM/Rec(2024)2 on Countering the Use of Strategic Lawsuits against Public Participation (SLAPPs) was adopted by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe (5 April 2024), establishes the first Council of Europe standards for preventing and addressing abusive legal proceedings used to silence journalists, media actors, human rights defenders and other public watchdogs. It calls on member States to adopt procedural safeguards, provide effective remedies for victims of SLAPPs, and strengthen judicial capacity to protect freedom of expression and public participation.

In June-July 2024, the Parliamentary Assembly of the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe adopted a Resolution on navigating Contemporary Journalism and Gender Related Challenges in its 31st Annual Session. The Resolution calls for the release or arbitrarily detained journalists, promoting a culture of remembrance for killed journalists and greater coordination for monitoring attacks against journalists, particularly gender-based attacks.

The Framework Convention CETS No. 225 on Artificial Intelligence, Human Rights, Democracy and the Rule of Law (Council of Europe, September 2024), establishes the first international legally binding treaty on artificial intelligence. Although it is broader than media freedom, it contains safeguards relevant to journalists, including the protection of freedom of expression, access to information, and human rights in the development and deployment of AI systems that increasingly affect journalism and the information ecosystem.

The Regulation (EU) 2024/1083 establishing the European Media Freedom Act (EMFA) adopted by the European Parliament and the Council of the European Union in April 2024, establishes a common European framework to safeguard media freedom, pluralism and editorial independence. The Regulation strengthens protections relevant to journalist safety by introducing safeguards against undue interference, protecting journalistic sources, limiting the use of surveillance measures against journalists, and improving the independence of media regulators and public service media.

The Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe adopted three resolutions on the safety of journalists in 2024 and 2025. The resolutions were based on reports submitted the Assembly. In 2024, the Report and Resolution 2532 on Guaranteeing media freedom and the safety of journalists: an obligation of member States was adopted and calls on Member States to implement policies to prevent protect and prosecute crimes against journalists.

In 2025, the Report and Resolution 2618 on Journalists matter: the need to step up efforts to liberate Ukrainian journalists held in captivity by the Russian Federation was adopted and calls on Member States to release journalists in detention. Additionally, in 2025, the Report and Resolution 2623 on Urgent call to put an end to the devastating humanitarian catastrophe and the killing of journalists in Gaza was adopted and calls on member states to protect journalists in Gaza and allow foreign media to enter Gaza.

7. Trends in Journalist Safety from 2006-2025

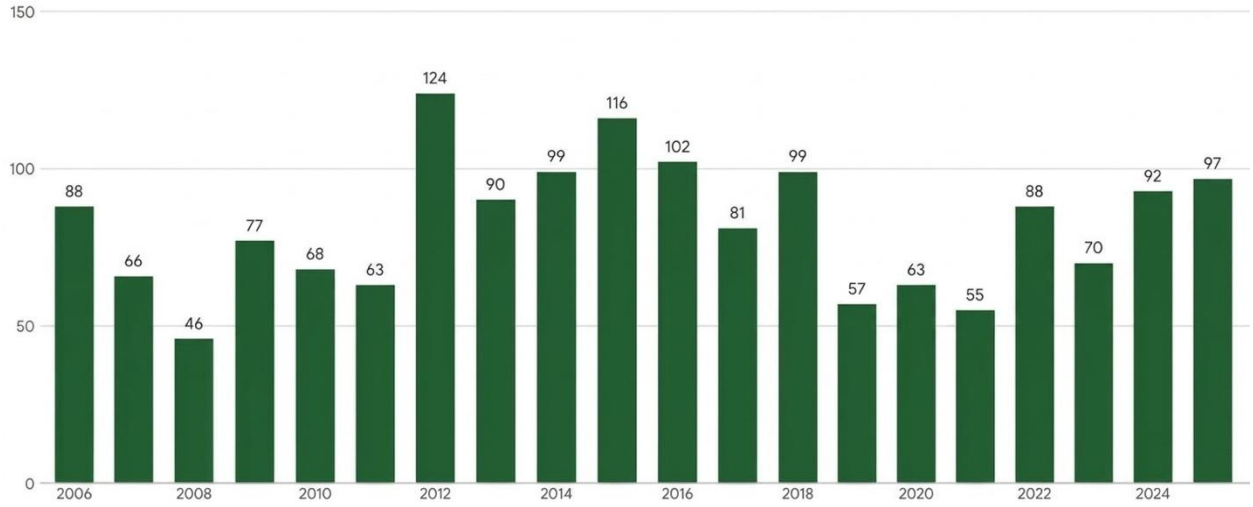

The IPDC Intergovernmental Council's Decision on the Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity, and the United Nations Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity in 2024, requested a comparative analysis of trends in the killing of journalists and media workers over the last 20 years, to mark the 10th biennial edition of this report.

NOTE: Whereas the Director General condemned 1,637 cases between 1 January 2006 and 31 October 2025 (when the Director-General's request was sent out to Member States) as noted in 4.c, the 1,641 cases referred to here include an extra four (4) cases that the Director-General condemned between 1 November 2025 and 31 December 2025.

The Situation

Since 2006, UNESCO has recorded 1,641 killings of journalists, media workers and social media producers. On average 80 journalists are killed every year in the course of their work, either through direct targeting or while reporting on assignment.

A journalist is killed every 4 days, yet very few of those responsible are being held to account for these crimes. In 2012, at the height of killings and recorded impunity for crimes against journalists (95%), a multi-stakeholder UN Plan of Action was developed at UNESCO to tackle this issue. Impunity for crimes against journalists has since reduced to 86%, a notable decline from previous years, although the figure remains above the 85% recorded in 2024.

The decline in the rate of impunity for cases of killed journalists appears to have been slowed mainly by the lower rate of case resolution for journalists killed in conflict zones. Killings of journalists in countries experiencing armed conflict have accounted for the majority of killings during the past twenty years, 52% (or 860), whereas journalist killings in countries not experiencing non-conflict related have accounted for 48% (781).

UNESCO data suggests that case resolution is more likely where security and judicial institutions remain functional and accessible. Out of 223 resolved cases since 2006, 177 (almost 80%) were resolved in countries not experiencing armed conflict. The impunity rate for cases of killed journalists in countries not experiencing armed conflict is significantly lower than the global rate of impunity, at 77%, although still too high.

The rate of impunity for cases of journalists killed in countries not experiencing armed conflict decreased from 94% in 2012 to 77% in 2026. However, this data also shows that challenges for resolving cases of killed journalists persist regardless of conflict, as since 2022 the rate of impunity in countries not experiencing conflict has plateaued at 77%.

From 2006, during the first decade of systematic monitoring, in most years the majority of journalist killings took place in countries experiencing armed conflict. From 2016, this trend reversed, with most killings taking place in countries not experiencing conflict, precipitating a seven-year period of relatively low conflict related killings which ended in 2023 when killings in conflict zones once again became predominant.

Recently, conflict related killings have significantly outpaced non-conflict related killings, a phenomenon which has previously occurred during periodic flare ups lasting several years, for example from 2006-2008, 2012-2015, and currently 2023-2025. The most recent flare up of armed conflict has seen the emergence of UAV-related journalist fatalities in conflict zones. From 2024-2025, 50 journalists were reported as having been killed in strikes involving unmanned aerial vehicles. All of these killings occurred in conflict zones, accounting for 40% of killed journalists in countries experiencing armed conflict, and 26% of overall killings during this period.

This is a significant figure, unique to this most recent period of armed conflict. Over a quarter of all killings in the past two years are due to the use of drones (UAVs). The use of these systems in incidents resulting in the killing of journalists has predominantly occurred in the State of Palestine (32 killings), and to a lesser extent in Republic of the Sudan (6), Ukraine (6), Iraq (3), the Syrian Arab Republic (2), and Afghanistan (1).

Local journalists covering armed conflict have always borne the brunt of these physical attacks. Since 2006, local journalists killed in countries experiencing armed conflict have largely been killed in Iraq (164), the Syrian Arab Republic (101), the State of Palestine (100), Somalia (77), Afghanistan (72), Yemen (49), Pakistan (48) and Colombia (31).

Local journalists account for 91% (779) of journalists killed in countries experiencing situations of armed conflict. Foreign journalists killed in countries experiencing armed conflict account for 9% (81) and have largely been killed in Ukraine (23), the Syrian Arab Republic (20), Afghanistan (10) and Iraq (6).

Overall, including non-conflict countries, foreign journalists have only accounted for 7% of journalist killings. Local journalists reporting on local stories whether that be corruption, crime or armed conflict account for the vast majority of killings.

Women journalists accounted for 7% (122) of all journalist killings compared to their male counterparts. In most years, less than 10 women journalists were killed except for 2016, 2017 and 2022. From 2014-2017, there was a spike in the number of women killed journalists representing the highest cumulative number in a four-year period.

Women journalists also face other targeted gender-based threats, harassment and physical violence. In 2021, a landmark UNESCO-led study coordinated by ICFJ, showed significant trends as to the extent of gendered attacks against journalists.[41]

The study found that 73% of women journalists had experienced online violence, 25% of the women journalists had received threats of physical violence, including death threats, 18% had received threats of sexual violence, and 13% had received serious threats directed at close family members.

In 2025, a comparable UN Women-ICFJ study found that women journalists and media workers are self-censoring at a rate of 45%, which is 50% higher than reported in 2021 (30%). Women journalists were twice as likely (22%) to report online violence incidents to the police than they were in 2021 (11%). Women journalists are significantly more likely (14%) to take legal action against perpetrators and facilitators of online violence compared to 2021 (8%).[42]

Globally, three regions recorded much higher numbers of killings of journalists than the rest. The Arab States (509), the Asia-Pacific (425), and Latin America-Caribbean (417) have all recorded the highest numbers of killings, doubling or tripling other regions like Africa (171), Central-Eastern Europe (77) and Western Europe-North America (42).

Regional trends in killings of journalists have remained largely consistent since 2006. Any changes recorded were mainly due to outbursts of conflict-related killings, particularly in Central-Eastern Europe (2022) and the Arab States (2006-2007, 2012-2015 and 2023-2025).

[41] The Chilling: global trends in online violence against women journalists; research discussion paper (2021).
[42] Tipping Point: Online Violence impacts, manifestations and redress in the AI Age (2025).

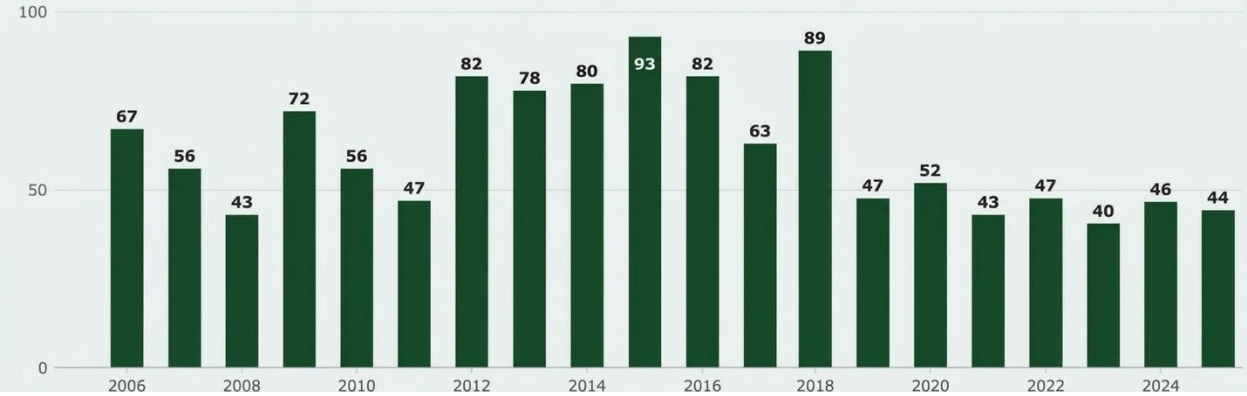

Reporting on environmental issues has become a vector for increasing violent attacks against journalists. In 2024, UNESCO and the International Federation of Journalists conducted a survey of journalists reporting on environmental issues, to map specific risks, pressures and reporting challenges faced during their work. UNESCO found that at least 749 journalists, groups of journalists, and news media outlets reporting on environmental issues had been attacked in 89 countries between 2009 and 2023. Over 300 attacks occurred between 2019-2023, marking a 42% increase from 2013-2018.[43]

The safety of journalists depends not only on freedom of expression but on the enjoyment of basic labour rights. The current labour conditions of journalists, not only endangers their safety (e.g. physical attacks, harassment and discrimination) and undermines efforts to respect their fundamental rights at work (like freedom of association and collective bargaining), but it also compromises the integrity of their journalistic reporting.

A recent ILO Report highlights the challenges facing journalism, including changing business models, the growth of freelance work, wage stagnation, gender pay gaps, violence and harassment. According to the Report, the business model of journalism has changed, towards increased reliance on freelance and self-employed independent journalists as newsgatherers to create content. Freelance journalists also often lack basic safety training and newsroom backup when covering conflicts, natural disasters and other crises.[44]

Furthermore, the ILO Report suggests that less staff journalists overall are being hired, and freelancers or casualised work forces continue to be sent into potentially dangerous contexts, with increasingly less access to safety equipment, legal, social and psychological support. In UNESCO's data, the killing of staff journalists has decreased while the killing of non-staff journalists has risen, particularly since 2022. When analyzing the most recent 14-year period (2012-2025), 567 staff journalists were killed from 2012-2018, compared to 319 staff journalists from 2019-2025.

The Response

In 2012, the UN Plan of Action was approved by the UN System Chief Executives Board for Coordination and established a global framework for coordinated action on the safety of journalists and the issue of impunity. A review on the implementation of the Plan took place for its 5-year and 10-year anniversaries to ensure continued impact and relevance, and in 2027 will again be reviewed.

At the time, this review was also informed by over 800 activities reported in 50 issues of the UN Plan of Action Newsletter, which now reaches over 10,000 subscribers for its 75th Issue.

Fourteen years after the introduction of the UN Plan, States have continuously renewed and expanded their commitments to journalist safety in international and regional multilateral fora, particularly the UN General Assembly (UNGA), UN Human Rights Council (UNHRC) and UNESCO General Conference.

The language on safety of journalists and the issue of impunity has significantly evolved over time after more than 30 resolutions and decisions on the topic. From 2012-2016, UNGA and UNHRC Resolutions laid the foundations for journalist safety, encouraging the creation of an enabling normative environment and strengthening capacities of judicial actors to prosecute these crimes.[45]

From 2017-2020, multilateral resolutions began recognising the gender dimension of safety and the expanding the understanding of specific gender-based risks encountered by women journalists.

From 2020-2025, multilateral resolutions have addressed the impact of new technologies, transnational repression of exiled journalists, the threat of SLAPPs, the monitoring and reporting of non-lethal attacks, and the need to establish and operationalise national safety mechanisms and action plans to prevent, protect and prosecute crimes against journalists.

Under its coalition-based approach, UNESCO has catalysed the UN system, national governments, civil society organisations and other stakeholders into coordinated and structured action to address the complex challenges impacting the safety of journalists.

For example, likeminded delegations at the UN Secretariat and at UNESCO pioneered the creation of a “Group of Friends” on the safety of journalists within their own headquarters, which was followed by similar informal groups at the Council of Europe, the Organisation of American States, the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe and most recently in the African Union.

UNESCO, along with OHCHR, co-chairs the UN Focal Point Network on the safety of journalists, which brings together 14+ UN agencies, funds and programmes whose work involves aspects of journalist safety. UNESCO chairs a ‘Light Touch’ Task Force bringing together for regional and thematic non-UN intergovernmental organisations whose work involves aspects of journalist safety. Lastly, UNESCO supports an International Coalition of Civil Society Organisations specialised in journalist safety, press freedom and media freedom issues, as well as is collaborating with the Media Freedom Coalition.

Finally, addressing impunity by cooperating directly with States has been a central tenant of UNESCO's coordination of the UN Plan of Action. UNESCO has achieved this by, 1) engaging stakeholders in the criminal and judicial investigative process to build capacities on freedom of expression and journalist safety, and 2) working with States to produce national institutional responses to safety of journalists which other States can adapt to their local risk contexts and draw upon for inspiration.

Since 2013, UNESCO's Judges' Initiative and Rule of Law activities have focused on engaging members of duty-bearers around the world on the need to protect and promote freedom of expression, access to information, and the safety of journalists, guaranteeing respect for human rights, democracy, and the rule of law.

Under this initiative, at least 39,000 judicial actors in more than 160 countries and 13,000 law enforcement agents in 150 countries have been engaged on international standards on freedom of expression and the safety of journalists. In addition, twelve (12) Memorandums of Understandings have been signed with regional human rights courts, judicial institutions and national supreme courts.[46]

In 2024, UNESCO launched the Global Repository of National Safety Mechanisms for Journalists to serve as a reference point for journalists, media managers, relevant stakeholders, experts, and the general public on the mechanisms and national action plans currently in place. UNESCO provides technical support for States seeking to establish or strengthen national mechanisms and action plans.[47]

This Repository currently details over 80 national action plans and mechanisms for the safety of journalists adapted to the local risk contexts of at least 36 different countries. All mechanisms address one or a combination of preventative, protective and prosecutorial measures for the safety of journalists.

8. Conclusion

In the 2024-2025 biennium UNESCO recorded a 20% increase in killings of journalists, media professionals and social media producers compared to the previous biennium. UNESCO verified 189 such killings, an average of one every 4 days.

The rate of impunity for cases of killed journalists rose to 86% in 2026, back to the same level recorded in 2022 and up from 85% in 2024. The State response rate decreased to 62%, below the decade-long average of 68%. Fewer States reported on the measures taken to address the safety concerns of journalists and women journalists.

Over the course of this biennium there has been more involvement from States with other UN human rights monitoring and reporting mechanisms, like the Voluntary National Review and the Universal Periodic Review on SDG Indicator 16.10.1. Through various IPDC Decisions, tools and technical resources, UNESCO has consistently encouraged and supported member States to participate in voluntary reporting mechanism, particularly within the SDG framework, as a contribution to evidence-based policy making, advocacy and accountability.

Besides killings, reliable data on enforced disappearances and arbitrary detention from international civil society organisations continued to show that these kinds of attacks are widespread and need to be addressed.

Twenty years after UNESCO began systematically monitoring the killings of journalists, attacks against journalists have continued to evolve and impunity for attacks against journalists remains a persistent issue.

There is still much more work to be done by UNESCO and all the stakeholders in the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity to promote safety, justice for crimes and an enabling environment for all to share truth and engage in journalism.

UNESCO remains committed to coordinating the holistic, coalition-based and multi-stakeholder implementation of the UN Plan of Action as the catalyst for fighting impunity for crimes against journalists.

9. Annexes

Annex A. Mandate for the Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity

Decision of the Intergovernmental Council of the International Programme for the Development of Communication (IPDC) in 2024

This Report was drafted pursuant to a Decision from Member States at the 34th Intergovernmental Council meeting of the International Programme for the Development of Communication in 2024. It is the tenth consecutive Report of the Director-General on this topic.

The Decision on the Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity, and the United Nations Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity, (ref.: CI-24/COUNCIL.34/Déc. Rev, Item 9), called on the Director-General of UNESCO to "continue to provide to the Intergovernmental Council of the IPDC an analytical report on the killing of journalists, media workers and social media producers who are engaged in journalistic activities based on the Director-General's condemnations, including information on the judicial inquiries which is based on the information provided by Member States on a voluntary basis."

According to the UN Statistical Commission, this Report is a key data source contributing towards SDG 16.10 to ensure public access to information and protect fundamental freedoms, in accordance with national legislation and international agreements. Specifically, for SDG Indicator 16.10.1 to determine the number of verified cases of killing, kidnapping, enforced disappearance, arbitrary detention and torture of journalists, associated media personnel, trade unionists and human rights advocates in the previous 12 months.

The Report focuses on the killings of journalists, media workers and social media producers around the world, including physical violence in the form of lethal and non-lethal attacks. The Report assesses the status of national judicial and criminal investigations into killings of journalists and highlights new measures implemented by member states to prevent, protect and prosecute crimes committed against journalists.

Information Sources: State Reactions to the Director-General's Requests for Information

UNESCO issues periodic requests for updated information on the status of judicial inquiries into cases of killed journalists condemned by the Director-General. The subsequent submissions received from States are used as sources of information for this report. The submissions received from States include additional information on proactive or innovative measures taken to promote the safety of journalists and combat impunity.

The information received from State submissions is principally used to determine the judicial status of cases of killed journalists and on that basis to assess the global impunity rate for lethal attacks against journalists. This informs UNESCO's global reporting on Sustainable Development Goal 16.10.1. This also informs the global impunity rate for cases of killed journalists, a key indicator of States' obligations to ensure accountability for crimes committed against journalists.

UNESCO's Observatory of Killed Journalists provides public access to information on the killings of journalists, as well as on the judicial status of cases and the frequency of States' reporting. It also provides detailed information, in cases where States agree to making their submission public. Such submissions are accessible in UNESCO's Digital Library.

The information received from States shows a diverse range of initiatives and activities being implemented in national contexts to address the safety of journalists and to strengthen national structures. Data collection and information sharing are important tools in the implementation of the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity. In addition to the Observatory therefore, UNESCO has also recently established a Global Repository of National Safety Mechanisms for Journalists which collects updated information on operational mechanisms that address the safety of journalists in one of the three strategies of prevention, protection and prosecution outlined in the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity. The Repository also provides relevant information on national action plans which have components that specifically address the safety of journalists.

Annex B: Draft International Programme for the Development of Communication Council Decision on the Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity

United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization

IPDC THE INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMME FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF COMMUNICATION

Item 4 of the agenda: Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity, and the United Nations Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity

The Council,

Having examined Document CI-26/COUNCIL.35/6.

PP 1. Welcoming the tenth biennial Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity, in particular its inclusion of comparative analysis of trends in the killing of journalists and media workers over the last 20 years as requested by the 34th session of the IPDC Council,

PP 2. Recalling the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Articles 19 and 29, and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, Article 19,

PP 3. Underlining the importance of the full implementation of the following decisions: the General Conference Resolution 29/C 29 on "Condemnation of violence against journalists "(1997); the Decision on safety of journalists adopted by the IPDC Council at its 34th session (2024), the United Nations General Assembly Resolution A/RES/80/217 (2025); and the UNESCO Executive Board Decision 221 EX/5.I.F (2025) on the safety of journalists and the issue of impunity,

PP 4. Welcoming UNESCO's role in leading the coordination and implementation of the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity, particularly in strengthening the coalition-based, holistic and multistakeholder approach,

PP 5. Taking note of the 2025 report of the UN Secretary General on "Safety of Journalists and the issue of impunity", calling for improving the safety of journalists reporting on climate change, environmental and other disaster issues, and that of the UN Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression "Threats to freedom of expression online in turbulent times" highlighting shifts in the governance of social media platforms and their consequences to freedom of opinion and expression online,

PP 6. Further taking note of the Pact for the Future, particularly its commitments to the protection of journalists and media professionals and associated media personnel in situations of armed conflict, and also taking note of the Global Digital Compact, particularly its commitments to strengthen international cooperation to promote information integrity, tolerance and respect in the digital space,

PP 7. Welcoming UNESCO's World Trends in Freedom of Expression and Media Development Global Report "Journalism: Shaping a World at Peace 2022/2025" underscoring the overarching importance of free, independent, pluralistic, and professional journalism for democratic life and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), while also noting continuing challenges to media freedom, including increasing self-censorship among journalists, the 10% decline in the Global Freedom of Expression Index and a 63% increase in of media self-censorship between since 2012 and 2024,

PP 8. Further welcoming the Joint Statements of the Presidents of the United Nations General Assembly, the General Conference of UNESCO, the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC), and the Human Rights Council, and the Chairperson of the Executive Board of UNESCO on the safety of journalists on the occasions of the 2024 and 2025 World Press Freedom Day, PP 9. Also welcoming increased advocacy on technology-facilitated gender-based violence (TFGBV) against women journalists during the 2025 global commemoration of the International Day to End Impunity for Crimes against Journalists (IDEI) and the launch of the Global Repository of National Safety Mechanisms for Journalists in 2024, as a sign of progress towards strengthening multistakeholder collaboration in the implementation of the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity,

PP 10. Acknowledging that the Director-General's Report on the Safety of Journalists and the Danger of Impunity has been recognized by the UN Statistical Commission as a contribution towards Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 16, Target 10, and as one of the resources for monitoring the safety of journalists and the danger of impunity,

PP 11. Noting the important contribution of UNESCO's statistics on SDG 16.10.1 to other monitoring and reporting mechanisms such as the Voluntary National Reviews (VNRs) at the High-Level Political Forum (HLPF), the Universal Periodic Review (UPR), the SDG Progress reports, and the UN Secretary-General's Report on the Protection of Civilians in Armed Conflict, and also noti*ng* that 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development is entering its final three years of implementation,

PP 12: Recognizing the progress made and the important contribution of the promotion and protection of the safety of journalists in the realization of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, in particular SDG Target 16.10 and Indicator 16.10.1, and emphasizing the need to preserve and strengthen the safety of journalists within the monitoring and reporting mechanisms of any post-2030 Agenda,

PP 13. Deeply concerned about the increase in the number of journalists killed this biennium, and in particular the growing number of journalists killed in countries experiencing conflicts,

PP 14. Alarmed by the increase in the impunity rate for the killing of journalists for the first time since UNESCO started measuring the impunity rate in 2012, reversing a consistent decrease observed between 2012 and 2024,

PP 15. Deeply concerned about the wide-ranging threats faced by journalists in the exercise of their profession, in particular, cases of disappearances, imprisonment, arbitrary detention, harassment both offline and online, including legal harassment, notably through strategic lawsuits against public participation (SLAPPs), persecution based on any grounds, and other harmful acts against journalists, as well as the growing use of internet shutdowns and network disruptions that impede journalists' ability to report, communicate, access information, and maintain contact with sources and support networks, thereby heightening risks to their safety,

PP 16. Also deeply concerned about the increase in the violence targeting women journalists, particularly online, and the gender-specific risks they face,

PP 17. Noting the decrease in the number of Member States that have responded to the Director-General's inquiry on the status of investigations into the killing of journalists,

PP 18. Taking note with appreciation of the positive measures taken by Member States to address the safety of journalists and the issue of impunity, including actions taken to monitor and tackle gender-specific risks, as well as the establishment and strengthening of national mechanisms for the safety of journalists,

PP 19. Welcoming IPDC's contribution to the implementation of the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists, including through the Safe Spaces initiative, focused on displaced and exiled journalists, and journalists in conflict situations, as well as IPDC's support, since 2012, to over 200 projects implemented by local organizations aiming to promote the safety of media professionals, PP 20. Emphasizing the continued relevance of the decisions on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity adopted in the previous sessions of the Intergovernmental Council of the IPDC,

1. Condemns the overall increase in the killings of journalists worldwide during this biennium, particularly in countries experiencing armed conflicts, while noting that impunity for those crimes remains a serious problem as regards the safety of journalists;
2. Also condemns the increasing violence and threats against journalists worldwide, in particular the growing threat posed by technology-facilitated gender-based violence (TFGBV) mostly affecting women journalists;
3. Equally condemns all other violations and abuses committed against journalists and media workers worldwide, including torture, enforced disappearance, arbitrary arrest, detention or expulsion, physical and sexual violence, intimidation, harassment, threats, and reprisals, both online and offline, the targeting of their family members or arbitrarily raiding and searching their residence, and other forms of violence of all kinds;
4. Requests the Director-General to explore options for strengthening the collection and reporting of available and verified information on enforced disappearance, arbitrary detention, kidnapping, and other harmful acts committed against journalists, in line with

SDG indicator 16.10.1; in coordination with OHCHR and other relevant United Nations entities;

5. Takes note with concern of the emerging and evolving technology-related risks to journalist safety, including risks associated with the use of unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs), particularly in conflict zones, and with digital surveillance technologies, and requests the Director-General to continue addressing these threats, within the framework of the UN Plan of Action, by implementing measures to protect and support journalists;
6. Notes with appreciation the efforts of the Member States that have provided information to the Director-General on the status of judicial and criminal investigations of killings of journalists, and notes the decline in Member States responses this biennium;
7. Strongly urges Member States that have not yet replied to the Director-General's requests, to provide, on voluntary basis, information on the status of judicial and criminal investigations of killings of journalists as a contribution to the fight against impunity;
8. Strongly urges Member States to authorize UNESCO to make such information publicly available on the dedicated UNESCO webpage, for the purposes of transparency, in line with previous Decisions on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity adopted by the Intergovernmental Council of the IPDC;
9. Requests the Director-General to continue to provide the Intergovernmental Council of the IPDC with an analytical report on the killings of journalists, media workers and social media producers who are engaged in journalistic activities based on the Director-General's condemnations, including information on judicial and criminal inquiries;
10. Taking into account the latest developments in the Director-General's analytical report, including the information provided on actions taken by Member States to promote the safety of journalists and the focus on gender-specific risks, requests the Director-General to officially inform without delay Member States and relevant partners of the publication of this report, including all stakeholders of the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity;
11. Encourages UNESCO to continue to support Member States in their monitoring and reporting mechanisms on journalists' safety and the issue of impunity, in both non-conflict and conflict situations, and to promote a gender-responsive approach throughout.
12. Encourages Member States in collaboration with UNESCO to enhance the capacity of national judicial training institutes, prosecution services, law enforcement agencies, forensic services, and National Human Rights Institutions (NHRIs), and to consider the voluntary use of UNESCO's existing knowledge resources and other forms of partnerships in addressing impunity and the safety of journalists;
13. Further encourages Member States to establish and strengthen national safety mechanisms for journalists, in order to reinforce the capacities of existing national structures for the prevention, protection and prosecution of crimes against journalists, through broad multi-stakeholder consultations.
14. Calls upon Member States to take measures to protect journalists and media workers from legal harassment, including SLAPPs, by adopting laws and policies that prevent such cases and provide support to victims.
15. Invites the Bureau of the Intergovernmental Council of the IPDC to continue supporting projects that further the objectives of the UN Plan of Action on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity, including activities addressing the specific threats faced by women journalists, and those addressing the situation of displaced and exiled journalists, including facilitating access to emergency visas;

16. Also invites the Director-General and Member States to increase their efforts in mobilizing additional extra-budgetary funding for UNESCO's work, including emergency programs, in the area of the safety of journalists and the issue of impunity.

Annex C: Methodology for the Analysis of States' Responses on the Status of Judicial Process and Criminal Investigations

The information in this report on the status of the investigations carried out on each killing condemned by the Director-General is based solely on the updates provided by concerned States.

Since 2006, cases of killed journalists are systematically condemned by the Director-General of UNESCO through press releases. General Conference 29 C/Resolution 29 (1997) mandates the Director-General to "condemn assassination and any physical violence against journalists as a crime against society, since this curtails freedom of expression and, as a consequence, the other rights and freedoms set forth in international human rights instruments". This mandate has been reinforced by other resolutions, such as the General Conference 36 C/Resolution 53 (2011), which calls on UNESCO to monitor the status of press freedom and safety of journalists in coordination with other UN bodies and relevant organizations in this field.

The information provided by States has been analysed for the purpose of this study and categorized as follows:

Resolved

The status of a case regarding the killing of a journalist is considered as "Resolved" if the State has provided one or more of the following responses to the Director-General's request to provide information concerning the status of the investigation:

1. The perpetrator(s) of the crime has (/have) been brought to justice and been convicted by a court of law.
2. The suspected perpetrator(s) of the crime died before a court case could take place or be completed.
3. The judicial process has revealed that the death was not related to the victim's journalistic practice.
4. The perpetrator(s) of the crime has (/have) been determined and sentenced, but due to a Presidential Pardon or Amnesty Law, they are released before their sentence has been carried out fully.

The Director-General no longer requests status updates once a case is deemed to have been resolved. However, a case may be moved back to the "Ongoing/Unresolved" category if UNESCO is informed of new developments about the case, such as an appeal, occurring at national, regional or international courts. In these cases, UNESCO will resume requesting status updates from the concerned State.

Ongoing/Unresolved

The status of a case regarding the killing of a journalist is considered as "Ongoing/Unresolved" if the State has provided one of the following responses to the Director-General's request to provide information concerning the status of the investigation:

1. The case is currently being investigated by law enforcement agencies or other relevant authorities.
2. The case has been taken up by the judicial system but a final verdict has not yet been reached and the suspect(s) has (/have) not been convicted and sentenced. The "Ongoing/Unresolved" category also applies to cases where an appeal is ongoing or where only one of the suspected killers has been convicted and sentenced.
3. The journalist has been reported by the Member State as having been killed by foreign actors beyond national jurisdiction.
4. A court of law has acquitted the suspected perpetrator(s) of the crime (for example due to lack of or tampered evidence).
5. A court of law has ruled to archive the case or is otherwise unable to be processed through the judiciary system (for example, due to statutes of limitations). This category therefore also includes those cases for which a judicial process has been completed, but where no person(s) has (/have) yet been successfully held accountable in terms of due legal process, and hence where impunity in regard to the killing(s) still remains unresolved.

The Director-General continues to request status updates for all of the above cases, except in the instances where it is explicitly mentioned that the case has been judicially archived or killed by foreign actors beyond national jurisdiction.

No information received so far

"No information received so far" is used if the State has never provided information to UNESCO on the status of the investigation, whether this year or in previous years. This does not, however, exclude the possibility of the case having been resolved unbeknownst to UNESCO.

'Acknowledgments' are included in this category insofar as they do not include any specific information on the judicial follow-up into the cases of killings of journalists condemned by the Director-General.

The Director-General continues to request status updates for such cases.

Annex D: Public State Responses to the Director-General's Request

During the reporting period, the following correspondence was received by the Secretariat from States in response to the 2026 UNESCO Director-General's request for updated information on the status of criminal and judicial investigations on cases of killed journalists. This list includes only States that authorized the publication of their responses. To view all historical public State responses, see UNESCO's Digital Library.

Annex E: Working Method for Recording Killings of Journalists

The term journalist in UNESCO's monitoring and reporting mechanisms covers "journalists, media workers and social media producers who are engaged in journalistic activity", in line with IPDC Decisions on the Safety of Journalists and the Issue of Impunity adopted by the IPDC Council in 2008, 2010, 2012, 2014, 2016, 2018, 2020, 2022 and 2024. This definition also aligns with General Comment No. 34's broad interpretation of journalism as a "shared function" by a wide range of actors, including professional full-time reporters and analysts, as well as bloggers and others who engage in forms of self-publication in print, on the internet."

The cases of journalist killings recorded in the Observatory of Killed Journalists are identified and verified through the following process. First, a case of an alleged killing of a journalist is flagged to the Secretariat, for example by a Member State, Field Office, or specialised observer. The case is then added to an internal list for further monitoring and verification. UNESCO verifies that multiple sources, including international and regional press freedom, media and human rights organizations in relationship with UNESCO's Governing Bodies, have confirmed that a particular killing may have been connected to the journalists work, for example, when a journalist is targeted for reprisals as a result of their work, or killed while on assignment.

Cases that don't meet the verification criteria keep being monitored. Press releases available in the Observatory of Killed Journalists have been issued based on information available at the time. The information in the Observatory of Killed Journalists can be supplemented in case of new evidence by above-described sources. The Observatory of Killed Journalists includes all cases for which the Director-General has called for a thorough and transparent investigation into the circumstances surrounding their deaths, including cases of deaths that have been deplored

Annex F: Methodology for the Categorization of State Reactions

When a State sends concrete information regarding the judicial process following the killing of a journalist, this is considered a response to the Director-General's request.

When a State acknowledges the receipt of the request (either by letter or by e-mail) and indicates further action, but does not deliver concrete information regarding specific cases, this is considered an acknowledgement.

Both responses and acknowledgements constitute reactions to the Director-General's request.

All concerned States are requested to authorize the publication of their responses which can be accessed here.
